

PREFACE

First and foremost I would like to thank my UCLA advisors, Professors Peter Hanns Reill and David Warren Sabean, as well as Professor George S. Rousseau. My research abroad would not have been possible without the financial support of a Fulbright grant to the Netherlands in 1985-1986, for which I am most thankful. I owe much to my sponsoring institute, the Metamedica Department of the University of Leyden, and its Director, Dr. Antonie M. Luyendijk-Elshout, who was so enthusiastic and helpful. I am especially grateful for the extraordinarily generous assistance from Professor Robert P. W. Visser, at the Department of the History and Foundations of Mathematics and Science, Institute of the History of Science, in Utrecht. His work on Camper as a zoologist has been a real inspiration to me.

I am indebted to the respective staffs of the National Museum of the History of Science and Medicine or Boerhaave Museum (MBL), the Bibliotheek der Rijksuniversiteit in Leyden (UBL), the Afdeling Zeldzame en Kostbare Werken at the Universiteitsbibliotheek in Amsterdam (UBA), the Universiteitsbibliotheek in Groningen (UBG), the Koninklijke Bibliotheek in The Hague (KBG), the Hollandsche Maatschappij der Wetenschappen Bibliotheek Teylers Stichting in Haarlem (HMW), and the Provinciale Bibliotheek van Friesland in Leeuwarden (PBF). It was through the latter that I found the descendant of Camper, Ms. Mary Camper-Titsingh of New York City, whom I cannot thank enough for her unfailing interest, collaboration and generosity.

I thank the Institut für Europäische Geschichte in Mainz, Germany for a grant in 1986-1987. The hospitality I received from the Medizinhistorisches Institut of the Johannes Gutenberg-Universität Mainz was much appreciated.

In this country I sincerely thank the staff of the History of Medicine Division at the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda, Maryland and the staff of the Library of Congress, Mr. Bruce Martin in particular, and its Rare Book Room, and the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, DC. This book would not have been realized without the encouragement and assistance of Dr. Amy Cohen Simowitz of Bethesda, Maryland. She read my initial draft from beginning to end and I learned a great deal from her insightful suggestions.

I am also indebted to Dr. Claire Sherman, Professors Robert and Ellen Ginsberg of Washington, DC; Dr. Virginia Callahan-Corbett of Florence, Massachusetts; and Dr. Adrianus A. van Soestbergen of Shoreham, New York. In the Netherlands, Dr. Jacob van Sluis, Dr. Marc van der Poel, Dr. Adriana van Leeuwen-Leefflang, Dr. Johanna A. Kossmann-Putto, my aunt Edith Schwarz, and Hans-Georg Leuzinger, Dipl. Arch. of Zurich, Switzerland, all helped me research, translate, or decipher medical or other terminology. I thank Hans de Koomen of Amsterdam for informing me that Camper's

name also appears in dentistry. In the making of dentures the teeth arch of the upper prosthesis must run parallel with the 'Camper plane,' officially defined as the 'plane extending from the inferior border of the ala of the nose to the superior border of the tragus of the ear'.<sup>1</sup>

A great many thanks go to my employers, the University of Central Arkansas in Conway, Arkansas, for their generous support of my dissertation revisions in the forms of two summer stipends and for one semester's reassigned teaching time. The support of colleagues, students, and friends proved invaluable in this long-term project. I am also indebted to Professor Robert Wokler of Manchester, England for his suggestions and to the editors of Rodopi.

It goes without saying that I could not have written this book without the support, in many forms, of my parents, Professors Paul H. E. and Marianne S. Meijer, of Washington, DC.

Conway, Arkansas, USA

<sup>1</sup> Boucher's Clinical Dental Terminology, ed. Thomas J. Zwemer (St. Louis: C. V. Mosby Company, 1982), p. 223.