

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I have had much assistance in my struggle to bring forth this book on Heidegger and poetry. Over the years many students patiently read with me Heidegger's writings, and we thought together about his insights. My poet friend, Myra Shapiro, has for years discussed poetry with me, encouraging me to dwell poetically. Other friends, among them Harold Shapiro and Leonard Grob, have supported my many academic and political activities, some of which are echoed in this book. My son, Neve, read chapters of the book and offered valuable insights. Nahum Finger, Rector of Ben Gurion University, and Jimmy Weinblat, Dean of Arts and Social Sciences provided financial support for this publication. Thanks to all of you.

I also thank the following publishers for permission to quote poems from their publications: The Ashland Poetry Press for permission to quote the poem "Bra" by Rhina P. Espaillat from the volume And What Rough Beast, edited by Robert McGovern and Stephen Haven; Bloodaxe Books Ltd. for permission to quote the poems "Remembering" and "Renunciation" from the volume I Won't Let You Go by Rabindranath Tagore; Copper Canyon Press for permission to quote two sonnets from the volume Collected Shorter Poems by Hayden Carruth, and also part of the poem "For All To Know" from the book Winter Garden by Pablo Neruda; John Hopkins University Press for permission to quote from David R. Slavitt's translation of Ovid's Poetry of Exile, p. 27; New Directions Publishing Corporation for permission to quote "Your Laughter" from the volume The Captain's Verses by Pablo Neruda; W.W. Norton and Co. Ltd. for permission to quote the poem "i like my body when it is with you" which appears in the volume Complete Poems 1904-1962 by E. E. Cummings.