

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Support for the research and writing of this book was provided by the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Arizona, the Steinfeld Grant, and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Portions of the work have been published elsewhere, and I owe thanks to the publishers for permission to reprint. Part of chapter four appeared as “‘In that the world’s contracted thus’: Casuistical Politics in Donne’s ‘Sunne Rising.’” In “The Muses Common-Weale”: Poetry and Politics in the Seventeenth Century. Eds. Claude Summers and Ted-Larry Pebworth. Columbia: University of Missouri Press, 1988, pp.23-33. Part of chapter two was published in Renaissance and Reformation, and portions of chapter three appeared in Seventeenth-Century Texts and Studies and The John Donne Journal.

For their helpful responses to drafts of the manuscript, I thank Joel Altman, Donald Friedman, Fred Kiefer, Peter Medine, Heiko Oberman, Michael Schoenfeldt, and Barbara Shapiro.

For their example, wisdom, and generosity, I will always be grateful to Heather Laycock Wilson, Rick Teagarden, Nancy Simpkins, Susan Derwin, and Laura Berry.

Rick, Aaron, and Mallory Brown have my deepest gratitude and love.
