This study began as a paper on the iconographic background and the theological program of the Ghent Altarpiece by the brothers Van Eyck. Anonymous colleagues who heard me read it asked me for further information, others made helpful suggestions. This led to a second paper and more comments. To all of them I am grateful, for the pursuit of Berengaudus of Ferrières that was the result, brought me nothing but pleasure. In this pursuit I received once again the often extraordinary courtesies from librarians and other scholars whose responses to my queries about Berengaudus manuscripts usually were most comprehensive. Their names appear in the Appendix on the extant manuscripts, but here I express my appreciation to all of them. The Keeper of Western Manuscripts, Bodleian Library, Oxford, as well as the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge gave their gracious permission for the use of photographs, respectively from Ms. Douce 180 and Trinity College MS R 16.2. I am also most grateful to the staff of these two libraries for their prompt response to my requests. I would also like to thank Professor Heiko A. Oberman, editor of Studies in the History of Christian Thought. His kind letter accepting this study as part of the series added to the pleasure I experienced in writing it.

My research in Europe was partly funded by the Faculty Development Committee of Ursinus College and I thank its members for their consideration of my requests. As always David Mill, the Reference Librarian, and Joan Rhodes, the Inter Library Loan Librarian were patient with my demands and ingenious in solving problems. My brother, Freek Visser, and his son, Drs. Irmin Visser, were helpful in finding items in Holland that were not readily available in the USA. Erik Moore solved word processing problems and was responsible for the final appearance of the text and he too deserves my appreciation.

Last but not least I happily thank two friends. Dr. Ludo Jongen, Leiden University, read an earlier draft with great care; he raised important questions and made useful suggestions to improve the content as well as the organisation of the material. Colette Hall, compagne de route par excellence, suffered through visits to monuments, my endless speculations and the repeated drafts of chapters with her customary humor and intellectual acuity.
