This book could not have been completed without the support of many. First, I express my sincerest appreciation to Professor Dinah Shelton, Professor Teresa Phelps and Professor Paulo Carozza of Notre Dame Law School, United States of America, who meticulously read my work and provided me with their valuable expertise.

I would like to express my profound appreciation to Dr. Kelly Dawn Askin, Director of the International Criminal Justice Institute, Washington, DC, for her help and support which contributed immensely to the publication of this book.

I express my gratitude to the staff of various libraries and international organizations for responding steadfastly to my research needs and for answering my endless questions with unwavering patience. At Notre Dame Kresge Law Library, I am profoundly indebted to Carmela, Krinslow, Dwight White, Susan Good, Jeff Morgan, Dan Manier, Patti Ogden, Mary, Emmy, Beth and Warren Reese. The staff of the libraries of the University of Pretoria, the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights in the Gambia, the United Nations International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda at Arusha, the University of South Africa, Makerere University, the High Court and Supreme Court of Uganda and the Law Development Centre, were extremely helpful.

I also wish to acknowledge with appreciation the assistance and support of Prof. P.J.M. Ssebuwufu, Vice-Chancellor, Makerere University, Professor Garth Meintjes, Professor Juan Mendez, Dr. Ada Verloren, Marilyn and Tina Jankowski of Notre Dame Law School, Dr. J. Barya, Head, Public and Comparative Law, Makerere University, Catherine Hironymi, the Aga Khan Foundation, and other colleagues at the AKF, including Mrs. Shirin Chatur, Anne and Agnes, Professor Frans Viljoen and Professor Christof Heyns of the University of Pretoria, Rev. Fr. Cornelius Ryan, C.S.C, Mr. Joseph Mary Mpoza, Dr. Fr. Kanyike, Prof.

Fr. Waliggo and my parents, brothers and sisters. Without your loving support throughout the years, things would have been very different.

I extend my word of gratitude to all those who contributed to an inspiring working environment and for supporting me in various ways, including Gegrio-Hellen family of South Bend, Indiana, the Miller and Rosette-Morrison families, Moses Kizige, Julie, Lawrence, Sam, Lisa, Peter, Benson, Joanna, Kola, Ali, Arlene, Charles, Joseph and Henry.

The publishers of this book, Transnational Publishers, New York, contributed immensely to it because of their excellent editorial assistance and professionalism. They have my profound appreciation.
