

PREFACE

This book highlights recent work of emerging Canadian scholars in ethics and political philosophy. While this focus on its own does not suggest a single theme, each chapter takes up a central question in value theory, and does it in an exciting and novel way. As a result, the contributions in each chapter form a unified whole that cuts to the heart of central questions in moral and political philosophy.

The book grew out of a conference of the same name held at The University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario in February 1994. We owe thanks to the Department of Philosophy at The University of Western Ontario for providing the funding that made the conference and the production of this book possible, to the conference participants and the contributors to this volume for their excellent work and enthusiasm, to Jeff Fullerton for invaluable production assistance, to Robert Ginsberg for suggesting that we submit a book proposal, to Westview Press for permission to reprint chapter five of Susan Babbitt's book Impossible Dreams: Rationality, Integrity, and Moral Imagination. And we owe a special thanks to Kathleen Okruhlik for her continued support and encouragement of this project and for research in ethics and political philosophy at The University of Western Ontario.
