

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Dr. Stephen D. Moore, Senior Lecturer in Biblical Studies at the University of Sheffield (United Kingdom), whose scholarly supervision, guidance, and invaluable criticism have made this research possible. His enthusiasm and dedication to the highest standards of scholarship have left an indelible mark upon my understanding of and appreciation for Biblical Studies. I would also like to thank Dr. George Aichele, Professor of Philosophy and Religion at Adrian College (MI, United States), for his helpful comments and criticisms on some of the early chapters of this book. I would also like to thank Dr. G. Frederick Young, Professor of History at Saint Mary's University (N.S., Canada), for his help in reading and commenting on each of the chapters as they were completed. I owe special thanks and gratitude to my wife, Kerry, for reading through the many rough drafts of this book. Her comments, insights, and continued support and friendship cannot be repaid. I also owe special thanks to the Overseas Research Students Awards Scheme for its monetary awards, as well as the University of Sheffield for its generous bursaries—both of which enabled this research to go forward. There are, of course, many others to whom I owe gratitude and who have contributed in some way to this book. To these others I can only say you are not forgotten. Lastly, any errors in this book are my own.
