

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I should like to acknowledge my special gratitude to my friend and colleague Rivka Merhav for her encouragement and advice, and her thorough reading of the manuscript, commenting on content and style; she offered many suggestions, which helped clarify my ideas; moreover, her feedback was always given generously. Some research on the menorah was conducted together with her (see our joint articles).

I am likewise indebted to those who have helped me prepare this book: warm thanks are due to Prof John J. Collins for his thorough editing; to Murray Rosovsky for his diligent work on the English; to Orit Tsuf, Adi Weichselbaum, and Rachel Pollack for their many drawings published in this book; to Vered Raz-Romeo and Galirom Adler, my research assistants, for their help with some technical aspects and checking parts of the corpus and the bibliography. The basic database program of the corpus was prepared by Smadar Shapira, and was further developed and advanced by my husband Gad.

I am grateful to my colleagues and friends who provided me with material for the book:

Prof. I. Patrich, Dept of Archaeology, University of Haifa for items from Caesarea. Ms. Rina, the Sdot-Yam Museum of the Antiquities of Caesarea Maritima, for the items from the museum. Mr. S. Palomero, Museo Sefardi, Toledo, Spain for data and photographs on the Tarragona basin and the Malaga relief. To Nicolo Bucaria of the European Community, for material on Sicily. To Prof. L. Rutgers for several colour photos he provided. Ms. L. Costamagna, the excavator, for the material, photograph and drawings of the Bova Marina items. The Archaeological Sacred Commission of the Vatican for permission to visit and research the Jewish catacombs of Rome and the finds stored in the Musei Vaticani, Sala Judaica.

My sincere thanks are due the following institutions and individuals who allowed me the publication and use of their photographs and drawings:

The Israel Antiquities Authority, Jerusalem and The Israel Museum, Jerusalem for permission to publish some of the items and for many of the photographs from excavations in Israel. The Archivio Fotografico, Monumenti Musei e Gallerie Pontificie, città del Vaticano, for photographs of material from the Jewish catacombs of Rome. The Ministère de l'Education Nationale, Institut Royal du Patrimoine Artistique, Bruxelles, for photographs from Apamea. To the Dura Europos Archive, Yale University Art Gallery, for the photographs from Dura-Europos. The Brooklyn Museum, Egyptian Department, for the photographs from Hammam-Lif. The Archivio Fotografico della Soprintendenza Archeologica di Ostia for the photo of the Ostia synagogue secured with the help of Prof. Floriani Squarciapino, the excavator. The Archaeological Exploration of Sardis for photographs of finds from the Sardis synagogue. The Ashmolean Museum, Oxford, for photographs of several lamps.

Photographs by D. Harris: Pls. II-3, 9, 15, 28, 48, 67, 69, 70, 74, 77, 80, 81, 86, 92;

Z. Radovan Pls. II-6, 10, 12, 18, 22, 25, 33, 35, 72; VII-2-6. All color photographs. P. Dorn: L6.17. A. Wilhelm: L10.1.

I especially want to thank my husband Gad, whose help was immeasurable; he painstakingly attended to the corpus and text processing facilities. His labors allowed me to proceed with the manuscript with few complications. Further affectionate thanks go to my children Guy, Sigal and Niv for their unfailing patience, support, and encouragement.

Rachel Hachlili
University of Haifa
July 2000