

Acknowledgements

It is a pleasure to record the assistance received from institutions and individuals which brought the present volume to fruition. I am deeply grateful to my own Faculty which, through a research grant, made possible the appointment of Mrs. A.J. Nathanson as Research Assistant in the Faculty of Laws, University College London, to collaborate on the present project. For primary Mongolian sources, we are indebted to the Library of the School of Oriental and African Studies in the University of London, to the Law Library of University College London, to the British Library, whose holdings (largely uncatalogued) proved indispensable, to the Lenin Library and to the Inter Documentation Company, Zug, Switzerland, for its willingness to pioneer yet another microfiche project of inestimable value to the world of scholarship.

In September-October 1979 I was privileged to spend a month in the Mongolian People's Republic to gather materials for this study. I should like to express my thanks to The British Academy and the Mongolian Academy of Sciences for arranging my visit, to the Mongolian State University for assuming the responsibilities of host institution, to Mongol jurists in the University and Academy who so patiently explained to me aspects of their legal system, to the MPR Supreme Court, the College of Mongolian Advocates, the MPR Ministry of Justice, and other institutions for granting interviews and visits, to the State Public Library of the MPR, and to diplomatic personnel of both the United Kingdom and the Mongolian People's Republic for many courtesies extended.

Professor C.R. Bawden and the Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies have graciously permitted the inclusion of the selection in Chapter I on a case of murder in eighteenth-century Mongolia.

The manuscript has been typed with exemplary skill by Mrs. Y. Crossland.

A special tribute is due to Mr. Robert Lyng, of Sijthoff & Noordhoff, and to Ms. Inge Angevaare, of Expertext, for preparing the volume so beautifully and expeditiously.

London,
November 1980

W.E.B.