

INTERNATIONAL LAW IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

NOVA ET VETERA IURIS GENTIUM

PUBLICATIONS OF THE INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF UTRECHT

SERIES A. MODERN INTERNATIONAL LAW
NUMBER 14

SIJTHOFF & NOORDHOFF
1979

INTERNATIONAL LAW IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

BY

Dr. J. H. W. VERZIJL

*Emeritus Professor of International Law
Utrecht University*

PART IX-B

THE LAW OF NEUTRALITY

SIJTHOFF & NOORDHOFF
1979

COPYRIGHT © 1979 SIJTHOFF & NOORDHOFF
INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHERS B.V.
ALPHEN AAN DEN RIJN—THE NETHERLANDS
LIBRARY OF CONGRESS CATALOG CARD NUMBER: 68-26728
ISBN 90 286 0158 9

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without the prior permission of the publisher.

Printed in the Netherlands

TABLE OF CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                |        |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Foreword . . . . .                                                                                                                             | V      |
| Preface . . . . .                                                                                                                              | 1      |
| Chapter I. Introductory . . . . .                                                                                                          | 3  |
| 1. The sources of the law of neutrality . . . . .                                                                                              | 3      |
| 2. Literature on neutrality law . . . . .                                                                                                      | 7      |
| 3. Terminology . . . . .                                                                                                                       | 12     |
| 4. Improper use of the term . . . . .                                                                                                          | 15     |
| 5. Distinction between different "grades" of neutrality . . . .                                                                                | 20     |
| 6. Excursus. Neutralization of States and territories . . . . .                                                                                | 21     |
| Chapter II. General topics and characteristics of neutrality law . .                                                                       | 28 |
| 1. General topics . . . . .                                                                                                                    | 28     |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                                                         | 28     |
| a. Duty to remain neutral, or duty to take part in a war .                                                                                     | 31     |
| b. Responsibility of a neutral State for acts of its citizens .                                                                                | 33     |
| c. Inconsistency between mandatory neutrality law andprevious treaty obligations . . . . .                                                 | 35     |
| d. Reprisals by or against neutrals . . . . .                                                                                                  | 36     |
| 2. General characteristics of the law of neutrality . . . . .                                                                                  | 39     |
| 3. Uncertainty of the contents of neutrality law . . . . .                                                                                     | 40     |
| Chapter III. History of neutrality law up to 1815, including thesystem of Armed Neutrality (1780, 1800) . . . . .                      | 46 |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                                                         | 46     |
| Section 1. Access of belligerent warships or privateers toneutral waters and their stay and revictualling orrefuelling there . . . . . | 58     |
| Section 2. Acts of war on neutral territory . . . . .                                                                                          | 61     |
| § 1. Sea warfare . . . . .                                                                                                                     | 61     |
| § 2. Land warfare . . . . .                                                                                                                    | 71     |
| Section 3. Neutral territory as basis of belligerent operations .                                                                              | 72     |
| Section 4. Marching of belligerent troops across neutralterritory . . . . .                                                                | 74     |
| Section 5. Admission of prizes to, and their treatment in,neutral ports . . . . .                                                          | 76     |

|                                                                                                                        |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Section 6. Establishment of a prize court by a belligerent State on neutral territory . . . . .                        | 83  |
| Section 7. Unneutral action by neutral subjects . . . . .                                                              | 85  |
| Section 8. Supply of troops, warships, munitions or other provisions to belligerent States by neutral States . . . . . | 86  |
| Section 9. Loans granted to a belligerent by neutrals . . . . .                                                        | 88  |
| Section 10. Belligerent troops seeking refuge on, or prisoners of war escaping to, neutral territory . . . . .         | 89  |
| Section 11. Belligerent action against ships sailing under convoy . . . . .                                            | 90  |
| Section 12. Enlistment of troops by a belligerent State on neutral territory . . . . .                                 | 93  |
| Section 13. Removal of individual persons from neutral ships . . . . .                                                 | 96  |
| Section 14. Joining of a belligerent army by individual neutral subjects . . . . .                                     | 98  |
| Section 15. Booty carried by a belligerent into neutral territory . . . . .                                            | 99  |
| Chapter IV. History of neutrality law. Second period 1815-1907 . . . . .                                               | 101 |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                                 | 101 |
| Section 1. Neutrality declarations and proclamations 1815-1907 . . . . .                                               | 104 |
| Section 2. Neutrality practice during the successive wars 1815-1907 . . . . .                                          | 106 |
| Initial period 1815-1854 . . . . .                                                                                     | 106 |
| Crimean and later wars 1854-1907 . . . . .                                                                             | 109 |
| Section 3. Arbitral settlement of neutrality disputes . . . . .                                                        | 147 |
| Chapter V. The codification of 1907 . . . . .                                                                          | 150 |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                                 | 150 |
| Section A. Rights and Duties of Neutral Powers and Persons in War on Land (Convention V of 1907) . . . . .             | 151 |
| Introductory observations . . . . .                                                                                    | 151 |
| § 1. Inviolability of neutral territory . . . . .                                                                      | 153 |
| § 2. Abstention from lending assistance to the belligerents . . . . .                                                  | 154 |
| § 3. Requirement of strict impartiality in other cases . . . . .                                                       | 155 |
| § 4. Internment of members of belligerent forces or their passage, if sick or wounded . . . . .                        | 155 |
| § 5. Export or transit of arms or munitions to belligerent Powers . . . . .                                            | 160 |
| § 6. The position of neutral subjects on belligerent territory . . . . .                                               | 161 |
| § 7. Mutual treatment of railway material . . . . .                                                                    | 162 |
| Section B. Neutrality law in time of naval war (Conventions X and XIII of 1907) . . . . .                              | 162 |
| Introductory observations . . . . .                                                                                    | 162 |

|                                                                                                                      |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Convention XIII. Rights and duties of neutral Powers in naval war . . . . .                                          | 163 |
| § 1. Inviolability of neutral waters . . . . .                                                                       | 164 |
| § 2. Neutral territory as basis of naval operations . . . . .                                                        | 165 |
| § 3. Access of belligerent warships to, and their stay in, neutral waters . . . . .                                  | 168 |
| (a) The access of warships to neutral waters . . . . .                                                               | 169 |
| (b) The number of warships admitted to access . . . . .                                                              | 171 |
| (c) The duration of their stay . . . . .                                                                             | 172 |
| (d) Simultaneous stay in neutral waters of ships from opposite camps . . . . .                                       | 173 |
| § 4. Repair, revictualling and refuelling of belligerent warships . . . . .                                          | 175 |
| § 5. Prizes and prize courts in neutral ports . . . . .                                                              | 177 |
| § 6. Convoy of neutral merchant ships by warships . . . . .                                                          | 179 |
| § 7. Removal of enemy or neutral subjects from neutral vessels . . . . .                                             | 180 |
| Final paragraph common to sections A and B. The enforcement of neutrality law. Internment . . . . .                  | 180 |
| Convention X. Adaptation of the Convention of Geneva to Maritime War . . . . .                                       | 183 |
| Section C. Neutrality in case of aerial war (Report of the Commission of Jurists of 1923) . . . . .                  | 185 |
| Chapter VI. The post-codification period . . . . .                                                                   | 187 |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                               | 187 |
| Section 1. From 1907 to 1914 . . . . .                                                                               | 189 |
| Italo-Turkish War of 1911 . . . . .                                                                                  | 190 |
| Balkan Wars 1912-1913 . . . . .                                                                                      | 194 |
| Section 2. During World War I (1914-1919) . . . . .                                                                  | 199 |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                                               | 199 |
| (a) Neutrality in general or in land warfare (Convention V of 1907) . . . . .                                        | 203 |
| § 1. Neutrality law and earlier treaty obligations . . . . .                                                         | 203 |
| § 2. The operation of neutrality law in disputed territory . . . . .                                                 | 206 |
| § 3. Different forms of assistance to the enemy. Sale or export of arms, munitions, warships, etc. . . . .           | 207 |
| § 4. Neutrality of the press and of public opinion. Ban on certain publications . . . . .                            | 209 |
| § 5. The use of wireless telegraphy . . . . .                                                                        | 210 |
| § 6. Foreign enlistment . . . . .                                                                                    | 211 |
| § 7. Transport of war material through neutral territory . . . . .                                                   | 213 |
| § 8. Flight of the German Emperor Wilhelm II to, and of German armies across, Netherlands territory (1918) . . . . . | 213 |

|                                                                                                                                          |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| The enforcement of neutrality regulations . . . . .                                                                                      | 214 |
| Internment . . . . .                                                                                                                     | 216 |
| (b) Neutrality in naval war (Conventions X and XIII of 1907)                                                                             | 220 |
| § 1. Acts of war, including visits and captures, in neutral waters . . . . .                                                             | 220 |
| § 2. Access of belligerent warships to, and their stay in neutral waters . . . . .                                                       | 221 |
| § 3. Simple passage of warships or prizes through a coastal belt . . . . .                                                               | 223 |
| § 4. The flag as criterion of a ship's nationality. Transfer to a neutral flag, and related subjects . . . . .                           | 224 |
| § 4 <sup>a</sup> . Foreign merchant ships pretending to be national ships . . . . .                                                      | 226 |
| § 5. Repair, provisioning and refuelling of belligerent warships in neutral waters . . . . .                                             | 226 |
| § 6. Submarines in neutral waters . . . . .                                                                                              | 228 |
| § 7. Defensively armed merchant vessels . . . . .                                                                                        | 229 |
| § 8. Maritime jurisdiction, especially in straits . . . . .                                                                              | 238 |
| § 9. Belligerent hydroplanes salvaged by neutral vessels and brought into neutral jurisdiction or drifting into neutral waters . . . . . | 239 |
| § 10. Shipwrecked belligerent marines picked up by neutral vessels . . . . .                                                             | 241 |
| § 11. Prisoners of war on board belligerent ships passing through or staying in neutral waters . . . . .                                 | 242 |
| § 12. The asserted right of angary or the requisitioning of neutral vessels . . . . .                                                    | 242 |
| § 13. Neutral convoy . . . . .                                                                                                           | 245 |
| § 14. Bases of naval operations . . . . .                                                                                                | 248 |
| § 15. The treatment of merchant vessels of belligerent States whose status has been changed as a result of acts of war . . . . .         | 251 |
| § 16. Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare . . . . .                                                                                 | 252 |
| Section 3. The inter-war period 1919-1939 . . . . .                                                                                      | 259 |
| § 1. Impact of the League of Nations Covenant on traditional neutrality law . . . . .                                                    | 260 |
| § 2. Further wars 1919-1939 . . . . .                                                                                                    | 262 |
| a. Russo-Polish war (1920) . . . . .                                                                                                     | 262 |
| b. Bolivian-Paraguayan War (1933) . . . . .                                                                                              | 263 |
| c. Italo-Ethiopian War (1935) . . . . .                                                                                                  | 264 |
| § 3. The Pan-American codification of 1928 (Havana) . . . . .                                                                            | 264 |
| § 4. The Harvard Research Draft of 1939 . . . . .                                                                                        | 267 |
| Synoptical survey of the rules of maritime law . . . . .                                                                                 | 272 |
| Section 4. World War II . . . . .                                                                                                        | 274 |

|                                                                                            |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction . . . . .                                                                     | 274 |
| § 1. The state of neutrality law on the eve of World War II . . . . .                      | 275 |
| § 2. Certain misleading concepts of economic and pressneutrality . . . . .             | 280 |
| § 3. Four neutrality disputes during World War II . . . . .                                | 284 |
| a. The Venlo incident (1939) . . . . .                                                     | 284 |
| b. The City of Flint case (1939) . . . . .                                          | 284 |
| c. The Altmark case (1940) . . . . .                                                | 288 |
| d. The case of the Italian warships interned in Spanishports (1943) . . . . .          | 290 |
| § 4. Certain case law during World War II . . . . .                                        | 292 |
| § 4 <sup>a</sup> . Case law during the Spanish Civil War . . . . .                         | 296 |
| Section 5. Impact of the United Nations Charter on traditionalneutrality law . . . . . | 298 |
| Section 6. The future of neutrality law . . . . .                                          | 300 |
| Abbreviations . . . . .                                                                    | 303 |
| List of Treaties . . . . .                                                                 | 307 |
| Index of Names . . . . .                                                                   | 313 |
| Index of Subjects . . . . .                                                                | 317 |