

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

---

Chapter 1: "Is International Law Really 'Law'?" 79 Northwestern Law Review 1293 (1985), copyright 1985 by Anthony D'Amato. Chapter 2: Co-Authored with Robert B. Von Mehren and prepared for the Hudson Institute in 1963, under the title "The Legality of the Use of Force Short of War." Chapter 3: Written for the first edition of this book. Chapter 4: Part of this chapter is an editorial, "Israel's Air Strike Upon the Iraqi Nuclear Reactor," 77 American Journal of International Law 584 (1983), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 5: "The Invasion of Panama was a Lawful Response to Tyranny," 84 American Journal of International Law 516 (1990), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 6, Part I: "The Theory of Customary International Law," 1988 Proceedings American Society of International Law 242, copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 6, Part II: "Custom and Treaties," 3 Vanderbilt Journal of Transitional Law 21 (1988), reprinted by permission. Chapter 6, Part III: "The Nicaragua Case: Trashing Customary International Law" 81 American Journal of International Law 1 (1987), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 7 and 8: Most of the material in these chapters comes from "The Concept of Human Rights in International Law," 82 Columbia Law Review 1110 (1982), copyright 1982 by Anthony D'Amato. Chapter 9. Most of this chapter was written for the first edition of this book, but the last part of the Tel-Oren Case is from an editorial, "Judge Bork's Concept of the Law of Nations is Seriously Mistaken," 79 American Journal of International Law 92 (1985), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 10, Part I: "The Relation of the Individual to the State in the Era of Human Rights," 24 Texas Journal of International Law 1 (1989), copyright 1988 by Anthony D'Amato. Chapter 10, Part II: "Torture as Raison D'Etat," 10 Criminal Justice

Ethics 40 (1991), copyright held by The Institute for Criminal Justice Ethics and used by permission. Chapter 11: Part of this chapter is "Are Human Rights Good for International Business?" 1 Northwestern Journal of International Law and Business 22 (1979), reprinted by permission. Chapter 12, Part I: "The Imposition of Attorney Sanctions for Claims Arising from the U.S. Air Raid on Libya" in 3 American Journal of International Law 84 (1990), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 12, Part II: "International Law in the Public Forum: The New York Times and the Libyan Chemical Weapons Plant," 3 American Journal of International Law 83 (1989), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 12, Part III: "International Law in the Curriculum," 2 Pace Yearbook of International Law (1990), reprinted by permission. Chapter 13: "Modifying U.S. Acceptance of the Compulsory Jurisdiction of the World Court," 2 American Journal of International Law 79 (1985), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. Chapter 14: Part of this Chapter are from "The Bantustan Proposals for South-West Africa," 4 Journal of Modern African Studies 177 (1966), reprinted by permission, and "Apartheid in South West Africa: Five Claims of Equality," 1 New England Law Review 59 (1966), reprinted by permission. Chapter 15: Most of this chapter is an editorial, "Nicaragua and International Law: The 'Academic' and the 'Real,'" 79 American Journal of International Law 657 (1985), copyright held by The American Society of International Law and used by permission. POSTSCRIPT: "Public International Law as a Career," 1 American University Journal of International Law and Policy 5 (1986).