

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Support for this work was provided by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the University Consortium for World Order Studies, under whose auspices the author spent the 1973-74 academic year as a James P. Warburg Fellow in the Center for International Affairs, Harvard University; the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution where, during the same period, the author was Senior Fellow in the Marine Policy and Ocean Management Program; and the National Sea Grant Program, Grant #61-8246, 1974-76, University of Washington. The author wishes to record his gratitude for this support, though the sponsors should in no way be held responsible for the views expressed herein. The author is also grateful to the officers of the International Council of Scientific Unions for the opportunity to be the ICSU observer at the Law of the Sea Conference from 1974-76, and to the Delegation of the Federated States of Micronesia for the opportunity to serve as adviser to the FSM Delegation from 1974-82. Again the views expressed are not to be taken as representing either the views of ICSU or of the FSM Delegation.

I wish also gratefully to acknowledge kind permission from the following publishing companies and journals to incorporate material of mine previously published by them: "The Dynamics of Global Ocean Politics", in Douglas M. Johnston (ed.), Marine Policy and the Coastal Community, (London: Croom Helm, Ltd., 1976), pp. 147-182; "An Interpretation of the Geneva Proceedings - Part I", Ocean Development and International Law, Vol.3, No.3(1976), pp. 187-224; "An Interpretation of the Geneva Proceedings - Part II", Ocean Development and International Law, Vol.3, No.4 (1976), pp. 303-340; "The Structure and Effects of the Decision Process in the Seabed Committee and the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea", International Organization, Vol.31, No.2 (Spring 1977), pp. 159-234; and "An Interpretation of the Negotiation Process of UNCLOS III", in Ronald St. John MacDonal (ed.), Essays in Honour of Wang Tieya, (Dordrecht: Martinus Nijhoff Publishers; 1994), pp. 551-566.

I am particularly indebted to several colleagues and friends who took the time to read an earlier version of this book and to provide detailed comments about organization, style and many substantive issues. The manuscript has benefited enormously from their help although I alone am responsible for any errors which remain. The individuals concerned are Daniel Bodansky, William Burke, Ernst Haas, Lee Kimball, Tullio Treves, Frederick Wyle, and Marc Zacher.

Finally, I would like to thank the University of Washington for a year of sabbatical leave in 1986-87 to allow me to complete the writing of the first two drafts of this book; thanks are also due to Joan Marts for typing several versions of this manuscript. A second sabbatical leave from the University of Washington in 1993-94 allowed me to complete a fourth revision of the manuscript.

Finally, I am greatly indebted to John Field for compiling the Index and to Marc Hershman (Director of the School of Marine Affairs) and Arthur Nowell (Dean of the College of Ocean and Fishery Sciences), University of Washington, for helping to defray the costs of Publication.
