

The Food and Agriculture Organization

This Research was carried out with the financial assistance of the Swiss National Foundation for Scientific Research and the Italian National Research Council (Centro di studio e di ricerca sulla comunità internazionale e le sue istituzioni).

The Research was directed by Philippe Cahier and Antonio Malintoppi. Chapters I to V, together with the conclusions, were written by Sergio Marchisio; chapters VI to VIII by Antonietta Di Blase. The authors thank Fabio Marcelli for the assistance given to the preparation of the English version.

All reproduction, adaptation and translation rights reserved for all countries, including the USSR.

The Graduate Institute of International Studies – Geneva
Società Italiana per la Organizzazione Internazionale – Roma

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION AND THE EVOLUTION OF WORLD SOCIETY
Volume 1

The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO)

by
Sergio Marchisio and Antonietta Di Blase

MARTINUS NIJHOFF PUBLISHERS
DORDRECHT / BOSTON / LONDON

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Marchisio, Sergio.

The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) / by Sergio Marchisio, Antonietta Di Blase.

p. cm. -- (International organization and the evolution of world society ; v. 1)

At head of title: The Graduate Institute of International Studies, Geneva; Società italiana per la organizzazione internazionale, Roma.

Includes bibliographical references (p.

Includes index.

ISBN 0-7923-1012-8 (U.S. : v. 1 : acid-free paper)

I. Food and Agriculture Organization of the United States. I. Di Blase, Antonietta. II. Graduate Institute of International Studies (Geneva, Switzerland) III. Società italiana per la organizzazione internazionale. IV. Title. V. Series.

S401.U6M37 1990

341.7'592--dc20

90-14287

ISBN 0-7923-1012-8

Published by Martinus Nijhoff Publishers,
P.O. Box 163, 3300 AD Dordrecht, The Netherlands.

Sold and distributed in the U.S.A. and Canada
by Kluwer Academic Publishers,
101 Philip Drive, Norwell, MA 02061, U.S.A.

In all other countries, sold and distributed by Kluwer Academic Publishers Group,
P.O. Box 322, 3300 AH Dordrecht, The Netherlands.

"A French language version of this study has been published by Georg Editeur S.A., Genève".

Printed on acid-free paper

All Rights Reserved
© 1991 Kluwer Academic Publishers
Kluwer Academic Publishers incorporates the publishing programmes of Martinus Nijhoff Publishers.

No part of the material protected by this copyright notice may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without written permission from the copyright owner.

Printed in the Netherlands

The Graduate Institute of International Studies — Geneva
Società Italiana per la Organizzazione Internazionale — Roma

In the same series:

The International Committee of the Red Cross

The International Labour Organisation

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD

vii

PART ONE

FUNDAMENTAL TIMES AND TURNS IN THE EVOLUTION OF FAO

CHAPTER I: THE FOUNDERS' CONCEPTION OF FAO

1. The origins of FAO and the tradition of cooperation in food and agriculture	3
2. The initial stages of cooperation influenced by the industrial revolution and the role of the agricultural organizations	4
3. The first intergovernmental approach: The International Institute of Agriculture	5
4. The 1929 economic crisis and its repercussions on the agricultural sector	7
5. The change in government policies and the "revolutionary marriage" between agriculture and health	7
6. The activities of the nutritionists' group during the war: from Hot Springs to Quebec	9
7. The Interim Commission's work and the different national interests	10
8. The static aspect of FAO: the normative principles and the absence of the Soviet Union	11
9. The dynamic aspect during the constitutive phase	14
10. The response of John Boyd Orr to the appeal of the United Nations General Assembly: the International Emergency Food Council	15
11. The failure of the proposal to establish a World Food Board	16
12. The end of the FAO constitutive phase in the face of post-war agricultural and food requirements	19
13. FAO in action and its resources: structural equilibrium and staff recruitment	20

xi

CHAPTER II: FAO MIDWAY BETWEEN QUASI-NORMATIVE AND OPERATIONAL ACTIVITIES

14. The change of the guard at the top: the two former officials of the American administration	22
15. The final attempt to increase FAO's powers: the International Commodity Clearing House	24
16. The means of action envisaged in FAO's Constitution: a) the "quasi-normative" instrument and the problem of surplus disposal	25
17. The content and effectiveness of the surplus disposal guidelines	28
18. A progressive approach to surplus and under-development	29
19. The victory of the conservative approach and its influence on the compulsory consultation procedure	31
20. The means of action envisaged in FAO's Constitution: b) the technical assistance instrument and FAO participation in the EPTA	33
21. The imitation-emulation model as the overriding concept of technical assistance	35
22. The extent of FAO's discretionary authority to set priorities. A "judicious" approach	36
23. The funding system: financial dependence and intellectual freedom	37
24. "In-house" readjustment just prior to the expansion of FAO's social base	38

CHAPTER III: THE QUANTITATIVE AND IDEOLOGICAL CHALLENGES: A BROADER SOCIAL BASE FOR FAO

25. The consequences of the mass entry of new States: a delayed impact	41
26. The quantitative challenge of the developing countries in the equilibrium of the Organization	42
27. The broader social base and FAO's universality	44
28. The ideological challenge of the new States: the re-appraisal of development notions and its limited consequences (Special Fund, UNDP)	47
29. Independent FAO action and external events: The Freedom from Hunger Campaign	50

30. Two opposing concepts of food aid	54
31. The World Food Programme	56
32. The establishment of UNCTAD and its impact on FAO	58
33. The role of the Organization with regard to the international agricultural commodity trade	59
34. The Organization at the end of the 1960s: an advisory bureau and source of technical assistance	61

PART TWO

REPERCUSSIONS ON THE INSTITUTION	65
---	-----------

CHAPTER IV: FROM CRISIS TO REORGANIZATION; FAO ADJUSTMENTS TO THE DEMANDS OF WORLD SOCIETY

35. The second period of FAO's evolution (1970-1989): the Organization and the internationalization of development issues	67
36. The gap between FAO general policy and the new development conceptions: the role of the Director General Addeke Hendrik Boerma	68
37. The FAO as honest broker: technological progress and food production	69
38. The Boerma reorientation plan: a) the "key to development" priority areas	71
39. The Boerma reorientation plan: b) internal reorganization and the expansion of funding sources	72
40. The development of the agricultural sector in the less advanced countries and the 1972-1974 crisis	74
41. FAO and the food and agriculture crisis	75
42. FAO countermeasures: the agricultural adjustment strategy and the International Undertaking on World Food Security	78
43. The repercussions of the World Food Conference	81
44. The new dimensions of technical cooperation	83
45. Differences of opinion on FAO's evolution after the World Conference: a courageous admission and a policy legacy	85
46. The political confrontations at the 18th Session of the Conference. The significance of the election of Edouard Saouma	86
47. The "recasting" of the Organization as a dynamic process	89

CHAPTER V: THE EVOLUTION OF FAO OBJECTIVES AND ACTIVITIES: A GENERAL POLICY FOR FOOD AND AGRICULTURE DEVELOPMENT

Section 1: Objectives

48. The global perspective of the modifications within FAO and the development of its objectives	92
49. World food security: mankind's shared responsibility	94
50. The human, social and cultural dimensions of development: the intermediate technology issue	95
51. The participation of the rural masses in the development process	96
52. The formulation of an agrarian reform strategy	98
53. FAO responsibilities and national sovereignty in the World Food Conference proceedings	99
54. The codification of the agrarian reform principles at the 1979 Conference: consensus ambiguity	100
55. The environment-energy objective	103
56. The 1977 reshaping to achieve the objectives of the new international economic order	107

Section 2: Activities

57. Interaction between the new FAO goals and the multiplication of its operational activities: from the normative to the pragmatic approach with regard to food security	109
58. The consequences of the unsuccessful negotiations on the new cereals agreement	111
59. The Saouma plan and its follow-up mechanisms	113
60. FAO's work in Africa: relief, rehabilitation and development	116
61. Joint food and nutrition activities	120
62. The technical cooperation programme: a new orientation of assistance funding. The relations with capital assistance sources	123
63. Towards a multiplication of operational programmes	125

Section 3: The development of FAO activities: the fisheries example

64. The original conception and the definition of FAO's jurisdiction	128
65. Regionalization and its instruments	130
66. The regional agency network	132
67. Recommendations and technical assistance	133
68. The repercussions of the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea	135
69. The "Exclusive Economic Zone" programme	137
70. The World Conference on Fisheries Management and Development	139

CHAPTER VI: THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE MEANS OF ACTION AND FINANCIAL RESOURCES

71. The role of FAO regarding official aid for agricultural development: a marginal position	143
72. Technical assistance and levels of investment: a relationship requiring improvement	145
73. Budgetary funding sources and statutory contributions	146
74. Extra-budgetary resources: a) the trust funds	150
75. Continued: b) the UNDP	154
76. The relationship between budgetary and extra-budgetary resources	157
77. FAO expenditures	158
78. The distribution of field activities per sector and the geographical location of expenditures	160
79. The problem of auditing the utilization of FAO resources	161
80. The transformation of food aid: the procedural and institutional problems of the WFP	166
81. The contributions to the WFP and the Emergency Food Reserve	169

CHAPTER VII: THE STRUCTURAL TRANSFORMATION

82. The general transformation in the composition of FAO membership	172
83. The government alignments and the conflict of interests: a) the industrialized market economy countries and their sub-groups	173

84. Continued: b) the Group of 77 within FAO	176
85. The impact of the existence of different alignments on the composition of the restricted FAO bodies	179
86. The quality of State participation: the composition of the statutory body delegations	180
87. Government delegations and permanent missions	181
88. The development of the FAO bodies: the Conference and the Council	183
89. The decision-making process and budget approval	185
90. The proliferation of the subsidiary bodies	188
91. The role of the Secretariat: the Director General and the internal organization	190
92. Staff recruitment conditioned by geographical distribution and technical ability	192
93. The problem of recruiting Headquarters officials	194
94. The problem of recruiting field officials	195
95. Increased bureaucracy and decentralization: Headquarters and the field	197
96. The present trend: continuity and innovation	198
97. The structures and objectives of the decentralization	199

CHAPTER VIII: FAO EXTERNAL RELATIONS

98. Extended external relations: a consequence of the expansion of the goals and activities	204
99. FAO-UNCTAD relations during the recent transformation of the Organization	205
100. The FAO adjustment efforts: the Committee on Commodity Problems and the International Agricultural Commodity Agency	207
101. FAO and the Integrated Programme. UNCTAD's Common Fund	208
102. The work of the advisory groups on commodities	210
103. FAO-UNCTAD complementarity and the global management of development problems	211
104. A challenge for FAO: the proliferation of parallel agencies	213
105. The World Food Council: a political forum	214
106. The International Fund for Agricultural Development: a complementary funding instrument	215
107. Relations with the non-governmental organizations	216
108. The current problems of FAO-NGO cooperation	218

CONCLUSION	220
BIBLIOGRAPHY	229
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	235
INDEX	237