

CONTRIBUTORS

DOMINGO E. ACEVEDO is the Principal Legal Adviser with the Secretariat for Legal Affairs of the Organization of American States. He is also an Adjunct Professor of Law at the Washington College of Law, the American University.

RICHARD B. BILDER is Burrus-Bascom Professor of Law at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He has served with the Office of the Legal Adviser of the U.S. Department of State and as an arbitrator in international disputes.

GOLER TEAL BUTCHER is Professor of Law at the Howard University School of Law. She formerly served as attorney in the Office of the Legal Adviser, U.S. Department of State and worked on the U.S. written statement for the Namibia case before the I.C.J.

JONATHAN I. CHARNEY is Professor of Law at Vanderbilt University and a former Section Chief at the U.S. Department of Justice, where he litigated cases involving international law. He served as expert for the United States in the Gulf of Maine Boundary case before the I.C.J.

ANTHONY D'AMATO is Professor of Law at Northwestern University School of Law. He served on the legal team for applicants Ethiopia and Liberia in the South West Africa cases before the I.C.J.

LORI FISLER DAMROSCH is Associate Professor of Law at Columbia University and was formerly Special Assistant to the Legal Adviser, U.S. Department of State. She served as counsel for the United States in the World Health Organization advisory opinion proceeding before the I.C.J. and participated in the preparation of the U.S. pleadings and oral argument in the Tehran Hostages case.

THOMAS M. FRANCK is Professor of Law and Director of the Center for International Studies at New York University School of Law, and Editor-in-Chief of the American Journal of International Law.

MICHAEL J. GLENNON is Visiting Professor of Law at the University of California at Davis; Professor of Law at the University of Cincinnati College of Law; and former Legal Counsel for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He appeared as a witness for Nicaragua before the I.C.J. in Nicaragua v. United States.

EDWARD GORDON is Professor of Law at Albany Law School, Union University.

LEO GROSS is Professor of International Law and Organization Emeritus at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He edited The Future of the International Court of Justice, published in 1976 for the American Society of International Law.

KEITH HIGHET is the current President of the American Society of International Law and a partner in the law firm of Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, Colt & Mosle in New York. He served as counsel to applicants Ethiopia and Liberia in the South West Africa cases and as counsel and advocate for Libya in the Tunisia/Libya case, the Application of Malta to Intervene in that case, and the Libya/Malta Continental Shelf case before the I.C.J.

JEROME M. LEHRMAN is a Fellow at the Center for International Studies of the New York University School of Law.

MONROE LEIGH is a partner in the law firm of Steptoe & Johnson in Washington, D.C. He served as the Legal Adviser of the Department of State from 1974 to 1977 and was a U.S. member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration from 1975 to 1980.

FRED L. MORRISON is Professor of Law at the University of Minnesota. He served as Counselor on International Law for the U.S. Department of State from 1982 to 1983 and as one of the counsel for the United States in the Nicaragua case.

MARY ELLEN O'CONNELL is an associate with the law firm of Covington & Burling in Washington, D.C.

BERNARD H. OXMAN is Professor of Law at the University of Miami School of Law and a former Assistant Legal Adviser of the U.S. Department of State. He was a legal consultant for the United States in the Gulf of Maine case before the I.C.J.

STEPHEN D. RAMSEY is an associate with the law firm of Steptoe & Johnson in Washington, D.C.

EUGENE V. ROSTOW is Sterling Professor Emeritus of Law and Public Affairs and Senior Research Scholar at Yale University and Distinguished Visiting Research Professor of Law and Diplomacy, National Defense University.

OSCAR SCHACHTER is Hamilton Fish Professor Emeritus of International Law and Diplomacy at Columbia University and served as a United Nations Legal Adviser from 1946-1966. He is a member of the Institut de Droit International.

JOHN R. STEVENSON is Chairman and Senior Partner of Sullivan & Cromwell in New York and a United States Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration in The Hague. He served as Legal Adviser of the Department of State from 1969 to 1972. He was the U.S. Representative before the I.C.J. in the Namibia case and a Special Counsel with the U.S. Delegation in the Gulf of Maine Boundary case.

EDITH BROWN WEISS is Professor of Law at the Georgetown University Law Center. In addition to her J.D., she has received a Ph.D. in political science from the University of California at Berkeley and has taught political science at Princeton University.

The views expressed in this volume are those of the contributors in their individual capacities and not of the American Society of International Law or any organization or governmental body with which the contributors are or have been affiliated.