

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Since my last book went to press in the late Fall of 1986, my life has been impoverished by the death of Sean MacBride. An Appendix to this book will have to serve as my formal tribute to him. Throughout the last decade, Anthony D'Amato has acted like a surrogate older brother to me. I shall always be grateful for his friendship and help. During the past four years, I have also come to rely increasingly upon the wisdom and counsel of Ramsey Clark. Finally, once again, I would like to express my great appreciation to my beautiful wife Betsy for the patience, kindness, and support she has always demonstrated during the past eight years of the Reagan administration despite my many trips away from home in this country and abroad: "Forsans et haec olim meminisse iuvabit." However, unless otherwise specifically indicated to the contrary, I alone am responsible for the contents of this book.

This book was written in honor of my international organizations teacher, Louis Sohn. The debt that I owe to him cannot be expressed in words. Nevertheless, the following Preface contains prepared remarks I delivered in his honor before a conference for the presentation of his festschrift that was held at the Washington College of Law of American University in Washington, D.C. on October 11, 1984.

F.A.B.
October 21, 1988