

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is the result of a four years laborious and sometimes toilsome effort to formulate and substantiate a few points concerning the Vedic Religion, which started revolving in my mind during my stay in Sri Lanka. As far as the laying out of a few fundamental questions is concerned, my gratitude goes first of all to Mahinda Paliawadana, Sanskrit Professor of Sri Jayawardenepure University of Sri Lanka, who, with his interesting talks enlightened me in various respects. I want to extend also my gratitude to all those who contributed in various ways to the progressive shaping of my work during the years of my doctorate in England, namely, David Smith, Jaroslav Krejci and John Bowker from Lancaster University, Karel Werner from Durham University, Ilya Gershevitch and Raymond Allchin from Cambridge University. Finally I want to express my gratitude to the two Catalan Institutions that have enabled with their generosity to subsidize the present publication, namely, CIRIT (Comissió Interdepartamental de Recerca i Innovació Tecnològica de la Generalitat de Catalunya) and La Fundació "Jaume Bofill".
