

Studies in comparative literature 10

Series Editors
C.C. Barfoot and Theo D'haen

Constellation Caliban

Figurations of a Character

Edited by
Nadia Lie & Theo D'haen

Amsterdam - Atlanta, GA
1997

Coverdesign: Hendrik van Delft
Illustration: Woodcut after Pieter Breughel (fragment)

ISBN: 90-420-0244-1 (bound)

ISBN: 90-420-0238-7 (paper)

© Editions Rodopi B.V., Amsterdam - Atlanta, GA 1997

Printed in The Netherlands

For I am all the subjects that you have

(Caliban in W. Shakespeare, The Tempest, I.ii)

Table of Contents

Preface	i
Dirk Delabastita Caliban's Afterlife. Reading Shakespearean Readings	1
Paul Franssen A Muddy Mirror	23
Barbara Baert Caliban as a Wild-Man. An Iconographical Approach	43
Jürgen Pieters Gazing at the Borders of The Tempest . Shakespeare, Greenblatt, and de Certeau	61
Koenraad Geldof Look Who's Talking. Caliban in Shakespeare, Renan and Guéhenno	81
Ortwin de Graef Browning Born to Wordsworth. Intimations of Relatability from Recollections of Early Monstrosity	113
Maarten van Delden The Survival of the Prettiest. Transmutations of Darwin in José Enrique Rodó's Ariel	145
Bart Philipsen & Georgi Verbeeck Caliban in the Weimar Republic. Arnold Zweig on Antisemitism	163
Kristine Vanden Berghe The Forgotten Caliban of Aníbal Ponce	185

Herman Servotte
Auden's Caliban. Man's 'Drab Mortality'	199
Tim Youngs
Cruising against the Id. The Transformation of Caliban in Forbidden Planet	211
A. James Arnold
Caliban, Culture and Nation-Building in the Caribbean	231
Nadia Lie
Countering Caliban. Roberto Fernández Retamar and the Postcolonial Debate	245
Chantal Zabus & Kevin A. Dwyer
"I'll be wise hereafter." Caliban in Postmodern British Cinema	271
Hedwig Schwall
Banville's Caliban as a Prestidigitator	291
Theo D'haen
The Tempest Now and Twenty Years After. Rachel Ingalls's Mrs Caliban and Tad Williams's Caliban's Hour	313
Cedric C. Barfoot
The Tempest Transposed. Caliban on the Moors	333
Notes on Contributors	343
Index	347