

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

FIRST AND FOREMOST, I want to express my deep gratitude to my husband, Dr. David R. Hughes, for his constant support during the entire duration of the field studies.

The initial spark for the researches came from conversations with friend and colleague, Dr. Verner Bickley, to whom many thanks are due, not only for the “idea” but also for helping to arrange contacts and for providing letters of introduction and institutional support through the Culture Learning Institute (East/West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii) during the feasibility study.

York University granted me sabbatical leave to carry out the researches and provided further help through a Faculty of Arts minor research grant. Thanks to these also at York: to David Bates, Bill Bruce and John Tybert of the Institute for Behavioural Research; to my superb research assistant, Diana Mansell; and to friend and colleague, Professor A. H. Richmond for moral support and academic guidance. I am grateful to Professor Stuart Philpott (University of Toronto) for his insightful comments and criticisms on an earlier draft of this monograph. Thanks also to Secretarial Services at York for their efforts in translating a patchwork manuscript into a neat and readable typescript.

Last, but certainly not least, I want to thank all the people in the Samoas – government officials, teachers, respondents and friends – who cooperated in making the researches both possible and pleasurable. Special thanks to Mr. Iulai Toma, Mr. Perefoti F. Tamati, Mr. Fred Betham, Mr. Aiono Keneti, Mr. Koko Aiono, Ms. M. Te’o, Mrs. Rosie Afamasaga, Jocelyn Henman and Mary Chase. And a very special thank you to Aunty Mary Croudace for providing us with a warm and friendly atmosphere to live in during our sojourn in Western Samoa.
