

Preface

The supervisor of my thesis Professor A. B. Breebaart, instilled in his students that they should aim at a fresh approach to the historical material, even if that should result in iconoclasm and exposure of false pretensions. I am deeply indebted to him for his continuous encouragement and advice in this difficult task, which I set myself in the present work.

I am very much indebted to Professor J. C. Kamerbeek, in particular for his critical remarks on my interpretation of the Greek texts.

Professor H. T. Wallinga was so kind to provide detailed information on the composition of the crews of the Athenian fleet in the fifth century B.C.

I am also under an obligation to Professor J. Swart for reading the manuscript and giving invaluable suggestions on the style.

I consider it a privilege that Dr. M. F. Jongkees-Vos – one of the few capable classical archaeologists who have fortunately not yet left this country – was prepared to supervise the chronological ordering of the Greek vases in the archaeological appendix. Her Scythian Archers in Archaic Attic Vase-Painting constituted a not inconsiderable source of inspiration in the choice of my subject.

My thanks are due to Ina Rike, for her excellent translation of this work.

I wish to express my gratitude to Miss. M.H. Groothand who, after my departure from the Department of Archaeology, continued to lend me all possible assistance in my research activities.

I am very grateful to Nanny Best-de Vries for taking great pains in reading the manuscript and criticizing it in detail; to Mr. J. W. Jong, who conscientiously conducted my correspondence with regard to this book during the last two years; to the management of Wolters-Noordhoff Publishing Company for the accuracy and speed with which this book was produced.

I am very much obliged to the authorities of the following museums and institutions for submitting photographs and giving permission to reproduce them: Museum antiker Kleinkunst, Munich; Antiksamlingen Nationalmuseet, Copenhagen; Archäologisches Institut, Leipsic; Archäologisches Institut, Heidelberg; Württembergisches Landesmuseum, Stuttgart; Fogg Art Museum, Cambridge Mass.; exhibition 'Historical Treasures from the Soviet-Union'.

Mr. Mario Astarita at Naples and Dr. Herbert A. Cahn at Basle were so kind to send photographs of fragments in their own collections.
