Title: Burial and memorial in late antiquity set / managing editor, Luke Lavan.

Description: Leiden ; Boston : Brill, 2024. | Series: Late antique archaeology, 1570-6893 ; vol. 13 | Includes bibliographical references and index. | Contents: v. 1. Thematic perspectives—v. 2. Regional perspectives. | Summary: "Burial and Memorial explores funerary and commemorative archaeology, A.D. 284-650, across the late antique world, from Catalonia to Cappadocia. The first volume includes an overview of research, and papers exploring bioarchaeology, mortuary rituals, mausolea, and funerary landscapes. It considers the sacralisation of tombs, movements of relics, and the political significance of cemeteries. The fate of statue monuments is explored, as memorials for individuals. Authors also compare the spoliation or preservation of tombs to other buildings, and, finally, how the city itself, with its monuments, served as a place of collective memory, where meanings were long maintained. The second volume includes papers exploring all aspects of funerary archaeology, from scientific samples in graves, to grave goods and tomb robbing and a bibliographic essay. It brings into focus neglected regions not usually considered by funerary archaeologists in NW Europe, such as the Levant, where burial archaeology is rich in grave goods, to Sicily and Sardinia, where post-mortem offerings and burial manipulations are well-attested. We also hear from excavations in Britain, from Canterbury and London, and see astonishing fruits from the application of science to graves recently excavated in Trier"—Provided by publisher.

The conference which inspired this volume met at Birkbeck College, London in November 2017 under the title “Fieldwork in Late Antique Archaeology: Burial and Funerary Practice”. The conference was convened by Luke Lavan, Rebecca Darley, assisted by Michael Mulryan. It would not have been possible without the collaboration at Birkbeck provided by Rebecca Darley. Financial support came from the School of European Culture and Languages (University of Kent), the Virtual Centre for Late Antiquity, Birkbeck, and Museum Selection. Our thanks also go out to the many people with whom we have discussed different aspects of this project for their advice and encouragement, and to the referees who read the articles contained here and offered many helpful comments. Finally, we are grateful to Dirk Bakker and Marcella Mulder at Brill for their help in overseeing the submission and page-setting of this book. We must apologise to all involved in the book, for delays in the editing, which Peter Crawford did much to minimise, caused by COVID and changes in editing personnel. This has been a frustrating experience for our authors. However, we believe the quality of papers in the volume to be high and range to be good, for what is the first overview of burial in Late Antiquity to cover a wide range of regions across the Mediterranean. It is to be hoped that the book will not only serve specialists but also bring a rich area of archaeology to the attention of mainstream late antique historians, who might better appreciate phenomena such as the cult of relics from studying mid to late antique funerary practices more widely.

Jens Amendt

Ph.D. (2003), and Associated Professor (2021), is a researcher and lecturer in Forensic and Medical Entomology at the University of Frankfurt/Main. He is (co)author of more than 100 scientific papers on forensic biology and entomology and co-editor of Current Concepts of Forensic Entomology.

Ádám Bollók

Ph.D. (2012), is a Senior Research Fellow of the Institute of Archaeology, Research Centre for the Humanities, Eötvös Loránd Research Network (Budapest). His main field of expertise includes the mortuary archaeology of the late antique Eastern Mediterranean and the Carpathian Basin.

Paul Booth

(BA FSA, MCIFA) is a former Senior Project Manager at Oxford Archaeology. He is currently working principally on the publication of excavations at Dorchester-on-Thames and has recently taken over as editor of Britannia Monographs for the Society for the Promotion of Roman Studies.

Valentina Caminnecki

is archaeologist of the Archaeological and Landscape Park of the Valley of the Temples of Agrigento. Her scientific interests and research projects focus especially on ancient Akragas/Agrigentum: houses, agora, baths. She has also undertaken new investigations into the late antique necropolis, harbour, and viability. She has directed projects of landscape archeology on small settlements along the Western Sicilian coast and the exploitation of gypsum.

Martin Carver

is Professor Emeritus at the University of York. He is the author of Formative Britain, The Sutton Hoo Story and Archaeological Investigation and was PI of the ERC project Sicily in Transition.

Alexandra Chavarría Arnau

is Full Professor of Medieval Archaeology at the University of Padua (Italy) has developed research and published in different subjects related to the period between the end of the Roman World and the Late Middle Ages such as rural settlement, cemeteries and churches.

Lukas Clemens

is Professor of Medieval History at the University of Trier. Previously, he was curator at the Rheinisches Landesmuseum Trier and head of the City Archaeology Department. His research focuses on the afterlife of Roman remains in the Middle Ages and he leads two research projects on St. Maximin in Trier and a Medieval bishop's seat in Apulia.

Sam Cleymans

Ph.D. (1991), is Visiting Assistant Professor in Classical Archaeology at KU Leuven (Belgium) and works as Exhibition Development Officer at the Gallo-Roman Museum (Belgium). His research focuses mostly on the funerary practices in Hellenistic, Roman and Byzantine Sagalassos and Asia Minor.

Ciprian Crețu

Ph.D. (2021), is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the “1 Decembrie 1918” University in Alba Iulia, and Research Assistant at the Institute of Anthropology of the Romanian Academy in Bucharest. He is currently working on a project about the bioarchaeology of children in Late Roman and Early Byzantine Scythia.

Rainer Drewello

Ph.D. (1998), is Vice President of the Trimberg Research Academy of the University of Bamberg as Emeritus of Excellence. He was Professor of Restoration and Conservation Sciences at the University of Bamberg (2000–2021) and is (co-)author of approx. 60 publications and scientific papers with interest in microbial and anthropogenic changes of cultural-historical objects.

Ursula Drewello

is a biologist and managing director of the Labor Drewello & Weißmann GmbH in Bamberg. The focus of her scientific investigations is on material science issues in the fields of monument conservation, archaeology and museum conservation using methods such as light and electron microscopy, IR micro-spectroscopy, ionic chromatography, and thermogravimetric techniques.

Elizabeth Duffy

is an Instructor and PhD Candidate in Archaeology at Canterbury Christ Church University.

Adrian Gollop

is a Project Officer with Canterbury Archaeological Trust. He led the excavations at the former Hallet's Garage, Canterbury.

Carl Heron

is Director of Scientific Research at the British Museum. Prior to this, he was Professor of Archaeological Sciences at the University of Bradford with interests in molecular and isotopic investigation of archaeological materials.

Solinda Kamani

Ph.D. (2015), is an Honorary Research Associate at the University of Kent and author of Neglected Architectural Decoration from the Late Antique City.

Hiltrud Merten

Ph.D. (1983), is an archaeologist and historian specialising in the Roman and Late Roman to Early Medieval periods in the city of Trier. She has researched the cult of Mars in Gaul and worked on epitaphs and small finds in the Early Christian cathedral at Trier.

Elisabeth O'Connell

Ph.D. (2007), is Byzantine World Curator at the British Museum. Her most recent edited volumes are Egypt and Empire: Religious Identity after Rome and The Hay Archive of Coptic Spells on Leather: A Multi-disciplinary Approach to the Materiality of Magical Practice (both 2022).

Mauro Puddu

Ph.D. (2017), is a Marie Skłodowska-Curie Fellow at Ca' Foscari University of Venice working on the archaeology of identities and social relationships in the Roman Empire through the lens of postcolonial, feminist, and semiotic theories.

Nicole Reifarth

is Professor of Conservation Science and Textile Archaeology at the University of Applied Science in Cologne. Her research focuses on multidisciplinary investigations of textile traces in terms of taphonomic alterations and indications for ancient preparation techniques on textiles.

Victoria Ridgeway

(MLitt; FSA) is a Director and Head of Post-Excavation at Pre-Construct Archaeology. She is series editor and manages production of PCA's monograph series and other in-house publications.
