

News, Memory and the Culture of the Stuart Intervention into the Thirty Years War, 1624–1630

Library of the Written Word

VOLUME 139

The Handpress World

Editors-in-Chief

Andrew Pettegree (University of St Andrews)
Arthur der Weduwen (University of St Andrews)

Editorial Board

Ann Blair (Harvard University)
Falk Eisermann (Staatsbibliothek zu Berlin – Preußischer Kulturbesitz)
Shanti Graheli (University of Glasgow)
Earle Havens (Johns Hopkins University)
Ian Maclean (All Souls College, Oxford)
Alicia Montoya (Radboud University)
Angela Nuovo (University of Milan)
Helen Smith (University of York)
Mark Towsey (University of Liverpool)
Malcolm Walsby (ENSSIB, Lyon)

VOLUME 114

The titles published in this series are listed at brill.com/lww

News, Memory and the Culture of the Stuart Intervention into the Thirty Years War, 1624–1630

The Bellicose Days

By

Tamsin Pritchard

BRILL

LEIDEN | BOSTON

Cover illustration: A map of the siege of Breda with the encirclement by the besieging troops of the Spanish army under Spinola, 1624. Artist unknown from the Low Countries; publisher: Sigismund Latomo, Frankfurt am Main. Rijksmuseum Amsterdam, RP-P-OB-81.091. Public Domain, <https://id.rijksmuseum.nl/200496726>.

This work was supported by AHRC Scottish Graduate School for Arts and Humanities, 2018–2022.

The Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data is available online at <https://catalog.loc.gov>
LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2025013408>

Typeface for the Latin, Greek, and Cyrillic scripts: “Brill”. See and download: brill.com/brill-typeface.

ISSN 1874-4834

ISBN 978-90-04-69620-4 (hardback)

ISBN 978-90-04-69621-1 (e-book)

DOI 10.1163/9789004696211

Copyright 2025 by Tamsin Pritchard. Published by Koninklijke Brill BV, Plantijnstraat 2, 2321 JC Leiden, The Netherlands.

Koninklijke Brill BV incorporates the imprints Brill, Brill Nijhoff, Brill Schöningh, Brill Fink, Brill mentis, Brill Wageningen Academic, Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, Böhlau and V&R unipress.

Koninklijke Brill BV reserves the right to protect this publication against unauthorized use. Requests for re-use and/or translations must be addressed to Koninklijke Brill BV via brill.com or copyright.com.

For more information: info@brill.com.

This book is printed on acid-free paper and produced in a sustainable manner.

Contents

Acknowledgments	VII
Abbreviations	XII
List of Figures	XIII
Introduction	1
1	Prelude: the Beginning of the Halcyon Days 2
2	The Bellicose Days 10
3	Cultures of War and News in Motion 14
4	Looking Outside the Crowded Corridors of Power: Early Caroline Historiography and the Thirty Years War 26
5	Landscapes of Memories and Ideas 34
6	Navigating the Bellicose Days 41
1	Memories of Machination and Massacre 45
1	Wars of Memory on the Eve of War 47
2	The Palatinate: the Politics of Contesting and Creating an Emerging Memory 58
3	Memories of Massacres and Fears of Spanish Combustion 74
2	Constructing a Kairos: an Anti-Habsburg Discourse at the Onset of War 91
1	Divisions and Diatribes: Assuaging the Cracks of the Kairos 95
2	The War against Universal Monarchy 106
3	One Funeral and a Kairostatic Wedding 118
3	‘The Action on Which the World’s Eye Is Turned’: the Siege of Breda and Disaster in the North 134
1	‘Let Antwerpes Fall like Thunder in Thy Eares’: Viewing Breda’s Siege through the Lens of Spanish Fury 137
2	Mapping Mars 144
3	The Handmaiden of War: Assuaging Disaster 153
4	Posterity, Power and Plague 163
5	Our Deare Vnkle’s Disaster 171
4	The Cultural and Meteorological Shadows of Cádiz 178
1	1596 and 1625: Elizabethan Memory and Foreign Policy 180
2	The Meteorological Shadow of Cádiz 194
3	The Shadow of Disgrace 208

5	La Rochelle: Graveyard of Huguenot Liberties and Stuart Foreign Policy	217
1	An 'Unnatural Combat': Fissuring the French Match	222
2	Galvanising Gallants: Justifying and Recruiting for a French War	230
3	News from the Île de Ré	241
4	Repercussions from the Ré	255
	Conclusion: a Farewell to Arms? The End of the Bellicose Days	268
	Bibliography	285
	Index	313

Acknowledgments

This monograph has been inspired and supported by many wonderful people across Europe. First and foremost, a large debt of gratitude is due to the supervisors of my PhD, from which the monograph evolved, Dr Catriona Murray and Professor James Loxley, whose critiques, encouragement and patience have helped hone a vast and at-times wild panorama into the book you are reading today. With my research being loosely located across the School of Literatures, Languages and Cultures, the Edinburgh College of Art and the School of History Classics and Archaeology, Catriona and James' respective expertise in visual and literary culture has helped enrich and positively challenge this cultural history. Furthermore, their professional support has been much appreciated over the course of a PhD which has faced the severe obstacles of the Covid-19 pandemic as well as chronic illness. Illuminating conversations with Dr Tom Webster, Dr Richard Oosterhoff and Dr Jamie Reid Baxter as well as generous feedback from Professor Greg Walker and Dr David Salter also helped enrich my research at The University of Edinburgh and within the city itself. Special thanks is owed to my examiners, Professor Adrian Streete and Dr Dermot Cavanagh for their insightful comments during my viva and for their ideas on how to take this project forward into a monograph. Speaking on behalf of all of the community in the LLC, we owe a massive gratitude to Alan Binnie and Karin Bolton, fabulous and supportive administrators without whom 50 George Square would surely crumble.

Special thanks of course due to the editors of this series, to Professor Andrew Pettegree and Dr Arthur der Weduwen for the academic support and generosity especially in welcoming me to present my research the St Andrews Early Modern and Reformation Seminar, a truly fantastic and creative environment to temper the theory seen in the landscape of European memories, and for their belief in this project. Thank you also to the editors at Brill, Ivo Romein and Simona Casadio for their support.

Another debt is owed to my former supervisors at the University of York where the ideas for this dissertation germinated, to Dr Freya Sierhuis and Professor Kevin Killeen, who nurtured my love for and expertise of, the tumultuous early modern period during my MA at the Centre for Renaissance and Early Modern Studies. To Professor Emilie Morin for her constant encouragement and empathy during my undergraduate also. Their kind support and inspiration over the past decade has been very much appreciated. They were instrumental in the success of eventually securing funding, and I acknowledge and thank the financial support of the Scottish Graduate School for the Arts and Humanities. Before proceeding to the multitude of deserved thanks, I would like to say that without the support of my family, Linda, Simon, Mark and Lynn, none of this would have been possible. For dragging me around castles, cathedrals and art galleries from a young age, nurturing creativity and for caring for me throughout an extremely difficult decade of illness, a colossal thank you is warranted. Likewise, I would like to thank the fantastic NHS consultants, doctors and nurses who have looked after me, in particular Dr Sinha, Dr Prasad, and Dr Rainone. Due to illness, in my late teens I really did not think I would make it into my 20s, yet the care of the NHS, family and friends have made this, and subsequent research possible.

Just as many people have supported the researching and writing of this book, places are vitally important. Alongside Edinburgh and York, Leiden and Firenze are cities that loom large in this experience. This book is a European cultural history composed across wonderful European cities. I would like the many people who warmly welcomed me in the Institute for History at Leiden University during my spell as visiting researcher, especially to Professor Judith Pollmann. Her kind introduction to life at Leiden, helping find accommodation in the notoriously difficult Dutch housing market, and for being a fantastic visiting supervisor whose expertise of cultural memory inspired much of my later approach. Conversations with Professor Nadine Akkerman, Dr Helmer Helmers, Professor Michael van Groesen, Dr Johannes Müller and Dr Jasper van der Steen were also thought provoking and enriching. At Leiden, the many adventures across the Netherlands and rich discussions about history with Dr Henri Hannula, Dr Edgar Pereira, Dr Thomas Mareite, Dr AnnaChiara Monaco and Dr Lucio Oriani were very much appreciated (all of this group are now doctors). The European University Institute in Firenze is another site in the writing of my book. My visiting supervisor Professor Ann Thomson, with her nuanced bricolage approach to the history of ideas, was patient and inspiring, and workshops and conversations with Professor Giancarlo Casale on cartography and empire and Professor Giorgio Riello on material culture were thought provoking and challenging.

Gratitude is also due to the archival maestro Matteo Calcagni for deciphering the rich labyrinth of Tuscan archives and for the research discussions and drinks with Anna Struillou, Pablo Cañón García, Ela Bozok, Konstantinos Poullos, Johannes Pelzl, Elisavet Papalexopoulou and Eduardo Fernández Guerrero. For the adventures and many historical conversations with Tom Ashby, Stephanie Leitzel, Jack Watkins, and Lia Brazil too. I hope one day researchers from Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and England are able to once again study in the friendly, international and vibrant community. Thank you also to the EURONEWS project, to Professor Brendan Dooley and Dr Davide Boerio, for their introduction to the tantalising study of manuscript news, and for marvellous discussions about the Jesuits with Professors Renate Dürr and Ulrike Strasse at the EUI. In Edinburgh, Leiden and Firenze a thank you to my hosts Hercule, Flavia, Sarah and to the many friends who generously accommodated me during the many trips between York and Edinburgh, special thanks is due for the gift of hospitality.

Much gratitude is owed to my committee at The Edinburgh Early Modern Network which I set up upon arrival in Edinburgh. To the administrative genius and passion of Dr Julia Smith, the diligence of Dr Carlo Scapecchi and to my brilliant successor Emily Kent, as well as other committee members Stefano Nicaastro, Emma Aviet, Cameron Cross, Eleonora Calviello, David Coney and Matthew Cleary, all of whom I am happy to call friends. The massive disruption of the pandemic may have temporarily curtailed in-person events yet it allowed the network to blossom and grow across Europe, America and the rest of the world. Thank you to every speaker who shared their fabulous research, to everyone who tuned into Zoom and participated in the discussion. Particular highlights include the collaborations between the EEMN and the wonderful early modern centres and projects at Ghent University, the European University Institute, Cambridge University and the Society for Renaissance Studies, the latter was of course enthusiastically supported by Dr Rachel Willie. Co-organising the inaugural Northern Early Modern Network and the four-day international Enemies in the Early Modern World conferences during lockdowns brought the joy of collaborating with brilliant researchers from around the world, in a shared virtual space. Special thanks is also owed to those friends who enabled these collaborations, Julia of course, as well as the magnificent Dr Edward Gray, Alex Beeton and Dr Silvia Cinnella Della Porta. Present and future collaborators in investigating crisis in the early modern world, Dr Sonja Kleij and Dr Anke Fischer-Kattner have also inspired and encouraged my work and of course thanks is due. Outside of these networks, I am truly grateful for the wit and wisdom of Ilaria Grando and Carlo Scapecchi respectively in helping begin my journey into the world of visual culture, especially to the former for always believing in me and showing me Europa. Albeit in a briefer measure than the previous two names who have contributed so much, I am also thankful for conversations with Dr Jessica Maier and Harleen Bagga, who both helped introduce me to early modern cartography.

For all of those researchers who tolerated (or even enjoyed) my research at conferences from Amsterdam to Oxford, for their critiques and encouragement, thank you.

With the limitations of a book arising from a PhD researched and written during the Covid-19 pandemic, research trips to Berlin, Paris, Copenhagen and Venice were curtailed, and this book is not therefore quite as transcultural as it may have been. However, through the medium of digitised early modern print and manuscript, the research continued to grow. Alongside the digital archives of national libraries of European countries, Early Modern Books Online, the Universal Short Title Catalogue, Gale's State Papers Online, and the digitised image collections of the Rijksmuseum Amsterdam, the British Museum London and the Royal Collection Trust was indispensable for online consultation during the lockdowns. A special thanks is thereby owed especially to the pragmatic approaches of institutions who make humanities heritage available for all, and to the curators and digital historians engaged with this process. Gratitude is due to the generosity of the Royal Collection Trust, the National Gallery London, Fort Kimbell Art Museum, the Yale Centre for British Art, Metropolitan Museum, British Library, Deutsche Digitale Bibliothek, and the Rijksmuseum Amsterdam for their generous allowance of images for this book. Before the pandemic, I was able to undertake archival research at The British Library, the Bodleian Library Oxford, the National Library of Scotland, The Archivio di Stato Firenze, Leiden University Special Collections, the Koninklijke Bibliotheek in The Hague, York Minster Library, and I acknowledge the hard work, expertise and enthusiasm of the librarians and archivists.

I have been truly inspired and supported by the friendship of many brilliant people throughout the course of the academic journey. To misappropriate John Ruskin's quote into another context and for another purpose, there truly is no treasure but life. In no particular order, thank you for the love and support of those not mentioned above in the acknowledgements: Krun, Lois, Omesh, Maxime, Juliette, Thomas, Ian, Greg, Marco, Elisabeth, Edward, Cecilia, Gabriel, Veronica, Marnie, Symone, Bob, Beth, Mario, Kathryn, Andrew, Jack (plural: there's a few), Alice, Aija, Johnny, Steph, Mariane, Harry, Laura, Felicia, Ben, Kat, Emily, Jimmy, Antoine, Alexandra, Claudia, Stefano, Tilly, Tom (again, there's so many), Nathan, Lucy (there's two), Brad, Elisa, Rachel, Hannah (multiple), Rory, Joe (there's a couple) Agana, Nadia, Roberta, Claudio, Richard, Jon, Marcela, Anna (quite a list), Dougie, Vicki, Andy, Sophie, Simon, Tim, Joe (again, there's a few), Natassa, Paulina, Federica, Fabiola, Jim, Dominic, Alexandra, Gustavo, Chris, Eleanna, Matteo, Mila, Kelly, Jess, Matt, Amanda, Jamie, Guido, Sheela, Anupama, Eileen, Sinan, Perry, Max, Malou, Charly, Silvio, Andrea, Kat, Bianca, Emma, Aisu, Avani, Bérengère, and apologies if you, dear friend, have been missed off due to the tired memory of a researcher.

I have occasionally quoted my own research, "Vengeance from God for the Blood of Innocents': The Cultural Afterlife of the Valtellina Crisis in the Early Stuart Imagination”, published in the Journal for the Northern Renaissance, Issue 11, 2020: Imagineering Violence, edited by Karel Vanhaesebrouck and Cornelis van der Haven. The section exploring the ‘information shadow’ will be published as ‘Information Shadows: News, Climate and Calamity at Cádiz in 1625,’ in Brendan Dooley and Sandy Wilkinson (eds.), Exciting News! Event Narration and Impact from Past to Present (Leiden: Brill, 2024).

Abbreviations

ASF	Archivio di Stato di Firenze
CESQB	Correspondence of Elisabeth Stuart Queen of Bohemia
CSPAWI	Calendar of State Papers Americas and West Indies
CSPCEICJ	Calendar of State Papers Colonial, East Indies, China and Japan
CSPD	Calendar State Papers Domestic
CSPV	Calendar State Papers Venice
EMBO	Early Modern Books Online
EMLO	Early Modern Letters Online
LPPR	Letters of Peter Paul Rubens
LJC	Letters of John Chamberlain
ODNB	Oxford Database of National Biography
OED	Oxford English Dictionary
PC	Privy Council
SPO	State Papers Online
USTC	Universal Short Title Catalogue

Figures

- 1 Peter Paul Rubens, Minerva Protects Pax From Mars ('Peace and War') 1629–1630. Oil on Canvas 5
- 2 Peter Paul Rubens, An Allegory showing the Effects of War ('The Horrors of War'), Oil Stuck Down on Canvas, c.1638 6
- 3 Saloman Savery, Visioen van de ondergang van Spanje, ca. 1630 engraving 38
- 4 Willem van de Passe, A Thankfull remembrance of Gods Mercie, 1624, engraving 49
- 5 After Samuel Ward, The Double Deliverance 1588 and 1605, 1621, etching 51
- 6 Willem de Passe, Triumphus Jacobi Regis Augustaeque ipsius Prolis, 1623, engraving 60
- 7 Renold Elstrack, John Sudbury and George Humble, The Right Noble and Verteous Princesse Elizabeth Daughter to our Sovereinge Lord Kinge James, 1619, engraving 65
- 8 Anon, Cvrrier Mit Guter vnd Tröstlicher Newen Zeitung vor das Betrübte Königreich, 1619, etching/letterpress, Deutsche Digitale Bibliothek, Digitization: Staatsbibliothek zu Berlin – Preußischer Kulturbesitz, Germany 66
- 9 Willem van de Passe, Portret van Frederik v van Bohemen, zijn echtgenote Elisabeth Stuart en hun vijf kinderen, 1621, engraving/letterpress 69
- 10 Anon, A Game at Chess, 1624, engraving 103
- 11 Crispin de Passe The Elder, Vox Dei, 1623, engraving 113
- 12 After Willem van der Passe, Epithalamium Gallo-Britannicum, 1625, engraving 125
- 13 Sigismund Latomo, Beleg van Breda, 1624, etching and engraving 147
- 14 Claes Janszoon Visscher, Belegering van Breda, 1625, etching and engraving 148
- 15 Grimaldo Orlando, Vero Disegno Della Pianta Della Citta Di Breda, etching and engraving, 1624 150
- 16 Monogrammist AVS, Spotprent op het geldtekort van Spinola, 1624. Etching, engraving and letterpress 159
- 17 Anon, A Rod for Run-Awayes, 1625. Woodcut 166
- 18 Cornelis Galle I after Peter Paul Rubens, Sitio de Breda, 1626, engraving 169
- 19 Robert Vaughan, Annales, 1625, engraving 188
- 20 Peter Paul Rubens, Equestrian Portrait of the Duke of Buckingham, 1625, Oil on Panel 191
- 21 Antoine Crues, Representation av Vray de L'Entiere/ deffaitte du Sieur de Soubise, & de l'armée Rocheloise, avec la prinse de l'Isle de Ré, engraving, 1625 226
- 22 Henry Burton, The Baiting of the Pope's Bull, woodcut, 1627 238

- 23 Frans Hogenberg, Kaart van het eiland Ré bij La Rochelle, engraving, 1627 243
- 24 Crispijn van de Passe, Portret van François Ravaillac, engraving,
c.1610–1637 247
- 25 Thomas Cecil, Effigies Generosissimi et Fortissimi Militis Iohannis Burgh Equitis Aurati, 1627–1628, engraving 251
- 26 Jacques Callot and Abraham Bosse, L'Assault Général des Anglais a la Citadelle, etching, c.1628–1631 254
- 27 Jacques Callot and Abraham Bosse, Défaite des Anglais, etching,
c.1628–1631 255
- 28 Melchior Tavernier, Plan Veritable et tres Exact de Siege de La Rochelle, engraving, 1628 259
- 29 Anon, Vero disegno della Rocella Piazza Fortissima de gli Heretici in Francia; co le trinciere et forti fatti intorno di essa da sua M.ta Christ.ma Insieme col disegno dell' Isola de Re, e suoi forti; combattati dall'armata Inglese, engraving, 1627 260
- 30 Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn, Beggar with Wooden Leg, etching, 1630 282