Acknowledgments

The institutions and individuals who helped me, either directly or indirectly in the preparation of the present text, are too numerous to mention. The work of the volume were supported by the grants of French Gouvernement (SSHN) at the Sorbonne- Nouvelle University in 2022 and 2024. I am especially indebted to Thorsten Botz-Bernstein who provided virtual line-by-line commentary. Special words of gratitude go to Andrzej Marzec for his editorial work. I would also like to thank Antonio Somaini, Kristian Feigelson and Emmanuel Siety for their invitation to the research in Paris. My sincere gratitude go to Roman Kubicki for his generous support in the form of a reference letter for my research stay. I should also express my thanks to Jeremy Pomeroy for his commentaries in the early stages of the writing.

Notes on Contributors

Tirna Chatterjee

is a Ph.D. scholar in the department of Cinema Studies in the School of Arts and Aesthetics, JNU, New Delhi, India. She is from Calcutta and enjoys the company of cats and her interests are her subjective lack of interest in things and studies of everyday life, boredom, melancholia, cities, affect theory, disinterest, leisure studies and the relations between eventative and non-eventative history writing.

Ian Fong

is an independent scholar teaching literary and cultural studies in various tertiary institutions in Hong Kong. He is now working on a book manuscript with the tentative title Infinite Responsibility of The Grandmaster and Beyond: Martial Arts, Hong Kong Film, and Hong Kong Culture. He received his Ph.D. degree in comparative literature from the University of Hong Kong.

Arzu Karaduman

is Visiting Assistant Professor at Ithaca College, NY. She holds a Ph.D. in Moving Image Studies from the School of Film, Media and Theater at Georgia State University. She is currently revising her dissertation, "Sounding Anew: Anasonicity in Contemporary Global Cinemas," into a book. Conceptually modeled on Akira Lippit's Atomic Light, "Sounding Anew" devises anasonicity as a new theory about sound in cinema and generates other terms to address sound techniques that disrupt synchronization in radical ways in contemporary global cinemas. Her research interests focus on film sound, film philosophy, contemporary global art cinemas, theories of visuality, and questions of race and gender in cinema.

Raoul Kirchmayr

is Adjunct Professor of Aesthetics at the University of Trieste. As a Research Fellow in Philosophy in Brussel (Université Libre de Bruxelles) and in Paris (EHESS), he received a Ph.D. in Theoretical Philosophy at the University of Trieste and in Aesthetics at the University of Paris 1. He is a member of the editorial board of the philosophy journal "Aut Aut" and researcher of the "Équipe Sartre" at the ITEM/ENS in Paris. He edited and translated into Italian works by Sartre, Lyotard, Sloterdijk, Nancy, Bernstein and others. Passioni del visibile. Saggi sull'estetica francese contemporanea (Passion of the Visible. Essays on the Contemporary French Aesthetics, 2018) is his last book. He recently wrote on Lacanian theory and deconstruction, Husserl's phenomenology, Philosophy and visual studies.

Kamil Lipiński

Ph.D. in Philosophy, is an assistant at the Contemporary Art Gallery Garbary 48. Alma Mater: Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań (two degrees in Philosophy and Cultural Studies). His numerous publications include Mapowanie obrazu. Między estetyczną teorią a praktyką (Image mapping. Between Aesthetic Theory and Practice, 2022) and he edited the issue "French Cultural Theory: Contexts and Applications" in Sensus Historiae (2015–2016). He was a runner-up in the 2019 Postgraduate Essay Prize awarded by the Postcolonial Studies Association/Journal of Postcolonial Writing.

Yonathan Listik

is a Lecturer at the University of Leiden. His interests are related to philosophy, more specifically, the possible connections between contemporary ontology in the continental tradition, political and social theory, epistemology, and aesthetics.

Andrzej Marzec

Philosopher, Assistant Professor at the Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań, Poland. Film critic, editor of "Czas Kultury" journal, curator of the experimental film cycle "Short circuits" presented at "Pawilon" cultural centre in Poznań (2018–2021). His research interests are speculative realism, object-oriented ontology, dark ecology, and contemporary alternative cinema. Author of the books "Widmologia. Teoria filozoficzna i praktyka artystyczna ponowoczesności" (Hauntology. Philosophical theory and artistic practice of postmodernity, 2015) and awarded with the Identitas prize for: "Antropocień – filozofia i estetyka po końcu świata" (Anthroposhade – philosophy and aesthetics after the end of the world, 2021). <https://amu.academia.edu/AndrzejMarzec>

is a Ph.D. candidate and Tisch Film School Scholar at Tel Aviv University, currently researching the impact of digital voice technologies on film and new media. Her work also explores phenomenological experiences of history in musical film and television. Tomer teaches at the Steve Tisch School of Film and Television at Tel Aviv University, and at the Bezalel Academy of Art and Design, Jerusalem. Her work has been published in The Soundtrack and Journal of Historical Fictions.

Cillian Ó Fathaigh

is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow in the Department of Logic and Theoretical Philosophy at the Universidad Complutense de Madrid (UCM), Spain. He completed his Ph.D. on the role of institutions in Jacques Derrida's political engagements at the University of Cambridge (England), where he was a Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation Scholar. Prior to coming to UCM, he was a Research Fellow on the "Spaces of Translation" project, a major Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC)–Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG) funded project, shared between Nottingham Trent University (England) and Johannes Gutenberg-Universität Mainz (Germany). He previously taught at the École Normale Supérieure de Lyon (France), and has been a scholar at both Trinity College, Dublin (Ireland), and St. John's College, Cambridge (England), and an invited student at the École Normale Supérieure (Ulm, France). His research interests lie in twentieth-century Francophone philosophy and intellectual history and his work has been published in prestigious international journals, including Philosophy and Social Criticism, Paragraph and Derrida Today. He has also co-edited two volumes: Derrida's Politics of Friendship: Amity and Enmity (Edinburgh University Press, 2022) and #NousSommes (Peter Lang, 2020).

Mariana Almeida Pereira

is a doctoral student in Philosophy at the University of Coimbra. Her thesis focuses on the question of the animal in Derrida's philosophy and aims at deconstructing the carnophallogocentric subject through the non-logocentric notions of vulnerability, corporal affection, and lack. She obtained her undergraduate (2019) and master's degree (2021) in Philosophy from the University of Porto.

Davide Persico

is an Italian Ph.D. in film studies since 2014. Since 2002 he is Professor at the University of Napoli "Federico II." His research interests are film theory about relationships between cinema and philosophy, especially hermeneutics, deconstruction and psychoanalysis, and the directors Michelangelo Antonioni, David Lynch, Bernardo Bertolucci, and Andrej Tarkovsky. He has published essays in the university magazines "Imago" and "Segnocinema," the monographs "Inland Empire. L'illusione e l'assenza" (Rome, 2010),
