Acknowledgments

This project has incurred many debts. We are thankful especially to the stellar contributors who made this collection what it is and who worked within a relatively short timeframe for a publication like this. Among the contributors, we owe a particular word of gratitude to the students of Amos Yong who first suggested the possibility of our editing this collection on the occasion of their teacher's 60th birthday. We readily accepted their invitation and now rejoice with them over the fruit of our shared labor. Aizaiah Yong, one of the contributors and the honoree's son, carried an additional burden by advising us on all of the important details that the surprise nature of the project kept us from asking Amos directly. Other members of Amos's family—Alma, Alyssa, and Annalisa—also supported this project throughout.

We appreciate Elizabeth Bento and Tessel Jonquiere at De Gruyter Brill for their guidance and patience throughout the process. Fuller Theological Seminary provided and gave permission to use the cover image of Amos lecturing, which, with a little imagination looks as if Amos were conducting—an apt image for a concert. We also thank Sawai Chinnawong for the generous permission to include the image of his Pentecost, as well as Jonathan Anderson and Paul de Neuvi for kindly assisting with our communication with Chinnawong. David Roebuck and the Dixon Pentecostal Research Center helped run down some citation information for footnotes. Sarah Harvey, a budding theology student, assisted with the earliest organizational stages of the project without knowing what any of the “secret” work was for.

Our families deserve the most thanks for their patience with yet another academic project that took longer than we hoped, and all the more for their strength and encouragement during our unplanned shifts since its inception. To Rachel, Nicholas, and Joshua, and to Lisa, Abigail and Bella—we appreciate your ongoing support.

Of course, we also thank Amos, without whose work this volume would not be possible, much less needed.

Last, we note that the completion of this project happens to coincide with the deaths of D. Lyle Dabney and Fr. David Coffey, both of whom were our teachers and were conversation partners for Amos. Both Dabney and Coffey, each in his own different way, started, and have now ended, with the Spirit.

Notes on Contributors

Uchenna D. Anyanwu

is a missiologist and currently serves as the Associate Director for Diaspora Ministry and Intercultural Engagement with Frontier Fellowship. He served in cross-cultural ministry with Calvary Ministries (CAPRO) in West and North Africa for over 15 years. He is also a mental health counselor and the author of Pathways to Peacebuilding: Staurocentric Theology in the Context of Acute Violence.

Melissa L. Archer

is Professor of New Testament and co-director of the MA Bible and Theology degree at Trinity Graduate School (Ellendale, ND). She is the author of I Was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day: A Pentecostal Engagement with Worship in the Apocalypse, as well as a co-editor of Sisters, Mothers, Daughters: Pentecostal Perspectives on Violence Against Women. She has also published essays in other edited volumes and articles in journals such as Pneuma and the Journal of Pentecostal Theology. Archer's interests include Revelation, Johannine literature, women in Scripture, and women in ministry leadership. She is an ordained minister in the Church of God (Cleveland, TN).

Michael D. Beardslee

is the Director of Advanced Christian Studies at the Richard and Julia Wilke Institute for Discipleship, based out of Southwestern College, KS. His writings lie at the intersection of theology and culture and the theological impact of world Christianity, and have been featured in journals like Religion and Theology and Studies in World Christianity. Michael holds degrees from Fuller Theological Seminary, Trinity International University, Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, and Friends University.

Dale M. Coulter

is Professor of Historical Theology and holds the Robert E. Fisher Chair of Spiritual Renewal at Pentecostal Theological Seminary.

Anna M. Droll

is Chair of the Doctoral Program at South Florida Theological Seminary in Deerfield Beach, FL. She is ordained with the Assemblies of God and founded Kairos Global Missions along with Kairos Ladies Home, a haven for vulnerable women in need of in-home care in Ghana, West Africa. Droll is a mentee of Amos Yong. Her doctoral dissertation was published by Brill and titled Dreams and Visions in African Pentecostal Spirituality: The Sub-Saharan Horizon of the Pneumatological Imagination (2023). “Dreams, Visions, and the African Melodrama” (PentecoStudies, 2022) is also among her published works. She is married to Raymond and has three daughters and a grandson.

Rodolfo Galvan Estrada III

is the Assistant Professor of New Testament at Vanguard University. He has a Ph.D. in Biblical Studies from Regent University, holds two master's degrees from Duke University, and has done post-doctoral work in Classics at Villanova University. Estrada's research focuses on race and ethnicity in the Greco-Roman world, Gospel of John, Jude, biblical pneumatology, and Latino readings of the New Testament.

Ciprian Gheorghe-Luca

is a Romanian Pentecostal theologian and the senior pastor of “Emmanuel” Christian Center in Bucharest, Romania. He holds a degree in Pentecostal pastoral and didactic theology from the University of Bucharest (Pentecostal Theological Institute, 2002) and a Ph.D. in Pentecostal/Public theology (summa cum laude) from “Aurel Vlaicu” University in Arad (AUVA), 2022. Ciprian has held various teaching and leadership positions, most recently, between 2015 and 2022, as Principal of “Emmanuel” Pentecostal Theological High School in Bucharest. An independent researcher, he has been closely cooperating with the Ars Theologica Research Center (AUVA), participating in research/writing projects and organizing academic events. He is also involved in the work of track two diplomacy, serving since 2024 as Regional Director of the Institute for Faith-Based Diplomacy (Romania). Ciprian's research interests and expertise are in the areas of public theology, Pentecostal dogmatics, Pentecostalism and public life, and religious diplomacy/ecumenism.

Veli-Matti Kärkkäinen is Professor of Systematic Theology at Fuller Theological Seminary and Docent of Ecumenics at the University of Helsinki. A native of Finland, he has taught theology in Thailand and participates widely in ecumenical, theological, and interreligious work. Author and (co-)editor of more than thirty books, his major project is the five-volume series titled Constructive Christian Theology for the Pluralistic World (Eerdmans 2013–2017), which develops Christian doctrine in dialogue with four faith traditions and sciences. He is an ordained Lutheran minister and a noted expert on Pentecostal-Charismatic issues and theologies.

Craig S. Keener is F. M. and Ada Thompson Professor of Biblical Studies at Asbury Theological Seminary. He is author of thirty-seven books (totaling some 19,000 pages), with some 1.4 million copies in circulation. The books have won fifteen national or international awards, including six from Christianity Today. Craig is married to Dr. Médine Moussounga Keener, who was a refugee in her home country of Congo.

Frank D. Macchia

holds the Master of Divinity from Union Theological Seminary (New York) and the Doctor of Theology from the University of Basel (Switzerland), where he was awarded the Jacob Burckhardt Prize for his dissertation. He was additionally awarded the Doctor of Divinity (Honorary) from the Pentecostal Theological Seminary (Cleveland, TN). He is currently Professor of Systematic Theology at Vanguard University of Southern California and Associate Director of the Centre for Pentecostal and Charismatic Studies at Bangor University, Wales (UK). His most recent books include Tongues of Fire: A Systematic Theology of the Christian Faith (Cascade, 2023), Introduction to Theology: Declaring the Wonders of God (Baker Academic, 2024), and Jesus the Spirit Baptizer: Christology in Light of Pentecost (Eerdmans, 2018).

Mark H. Mann

serves as Professor of Theology and Director of the Honors Scholars Program at Point Loma Nazarene University in San Diego, California and Lecturer in Religion at African Nazarene University in Nairobi, Kenya. With a Ph.D. from Boston University, he, along with Robert Cummings Neville and Amos Yong, is an early exponent of Boston Evangelicalism.

John J. Markey, OP

is a Professor of Theology and the Director of the Ph.D. program in Spirituality at Oblate School of Theology in San Antonio, Texas. He graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1984, then earned an MA in theology there two years later. He entered the Dominican Order, known as the Order of Preachers, in 1987 and was ordained a priest in 1993. He received his MDiv from the Dominican School of Philosophy and Theology in 1991 and his Ph.D. in Philosophy and Theology from the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, California in 1997. He has written six books, including Creating Communion: The Theology of the Constitutions of the Church (2003), Moses in Pharaoh's House: A Liberation Spirituality for North America (2014), and most recently, with Michael Ceragoli, Revisioning Spirituality: Human Transformation and the Communal Imagination (Paulist Press, 2025).

Martin W. Mittelstadt is Professor of New Testament at Evangel University (Springfield, MO), where he has taught since 2000. He is the author of three books on Luke-Acts: The Spirit and Suffering in Luke-Acts (2004), Reading Luke-Acts in the Pentecostal Tradition (2010), and The Evolution of a Pentecostal Scholar: Twenty Years in Luke-Acts (2024). Wolfgang Vondey and he co-edited The Theology of Amos Yong and the New Face of Pentecostal Scholarship (2013). Other publications and research interests center on Canadian Pentecostalism, ecumenism, reception history, and Pentecostal vocation. He is a past president of the Society for Pentecostal Studies.

Robert Cummings Neville

is an old emeritus Professor of Philosophy, Religion, and Theology at Boston University, where he was also Director of the Division of Religion and Theology, Dean of the School of Theology, Dean of Marsh Chapel, and Executive Director of the Danielsen Institute. He is the author of over 30 books (and editor of others) and over 300 articles. He has been president of the American Academy of Religion, the Metaphysical Society of America, the International Society for Chinese Philosophy, and the Charles S. Peirce Society.

is Editor-in-chief of Pneuma: The Journal of the Society for Pentecostal Studies. He has authored several articles and book chapters on the theology of Amos Yong, particularly Yong's hermeneutics. He is a theologian and philosopher who has spent most of his career teaching at Northwest University in Kirkland, Washington, The School of Urban Missions in El Dorado Hills, California, and Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He is the author of Theological Hermeneutics in the Classical Pentecostal Tradition: A Typological Account (Brill, 2012) and Pentecostal Hermeneutics in the Late Modern World: Essays on the Condition of Our Interpretation (Pickwick, 2022).

Mikeal C. Parsons

holds the Kidd L. and Buna Hitchcock Macon Chair in Religion at Baylor University, where he has taught since 1986. The author or editor of some thirty books, Parsons was named the inaugural University Distinguished Professor at Baylor in 2023.

Peter C. Phan

is the inaugural holder of the Ignacio Ellacuria Chair of Catholic Social Thought at Georgetown University.

Johnny Ramírez-Johnson

is a missiologist and practical theologian who works at the intersection of the social sciences and theology and who integrates principles from anthropology, cultural psychology, and cognitive psychology. His authored and edited books, which apply multicultural, intergenerational, and multilingual realities for North American churches in promoting not only love for Jesus but also healthy and holy lifestyles, include: A Way Up the Ladder, Motivation Achievement via Religious Ideology (2008); AVANCE: A Vision for a New Mañana (2003); Can "White" People Be Saved? Triangulating Race, Theology, and Mission (2018); and The Power of Love for Reaching Out to "the Other" (2023). His training in human development and cultural psychology provides theoretical vehicles for reading the Bible from a practical theology perspective that facilitates the gospel's work among the unreached and utilizes a pneumatological hermeneutical imagination. He has been involved in planting churches around the world, including Middle America, North America, and Lebanon, and has preached around the world for revivals, evangelism, and church growth.

Tony Richie

is Associate Professor of Theology at Pentecostal Theological Seminary (Cleveland, TN). An Ordained Bishop in the Church of God, he has served as a lead pastor for more than thirty-eight years and has been active in international missions, as well as ecumenical and interreligious dialogue. He has published more than a hundred articles and chapters on Pentecostal spirituality and theology as well as several monographs including the award-winning Essentials of Pentecostal Theology (2020), and more recently, Saved, Delivered, and Healed: Introducing a Pentecostal Theology of Salvation (2022), as well as contributions to Brill's Encyclopedia of Global Pentecostalism (2021) and The Routledge Handbook of Pentecostal Theology (2022). He resides in Cleveland, Tennessee with his beloved wife and partner in ministry, Sue, an ordained minister in the Church of God who serves on Pentecostal Theological Seminary's administrative staff. Together, they co-pastor the North Cleveland Church of God Peacemakers.

Christopher A. Stephenson is the author of Types of Pentecostal Theology: Method, System, Spirit (OUP) and Profiles of Pentecostal Theology (Brill). A recognized authority on the theology of Amos Yong, he is the editor of An Amos Yong Reader: The Pentecostal Spirit (Cascade). He is also co-editor of Pentecostal Theology and Ecumenical Theology: Interpretations and Intersections (Brill). His work focuses on the convergences of systematic, spiritual, and liturgical theology in ecumenical perspective. He has participated in bilateral and multilateral ecumenical dialogues at the national and international levels, including dialogues with the Catholic Church, the World Council of Churches, and the Mennonite Church (USA). He is writing a monograph (for OUP) on pentecostal liturgical theology that brings liturgical methodology to bear on ecumenical dialogue and ecumenical theology.

Lisa P. Stephenson is Professor of Systematic Theology at Lee University, in Cleveland, TN. She is the author of Dismantling the Dualisms for American Pentecostal Women in Ministry (Brill), which won the 2013 Pneuma Book Award, as well as co-author of Redemptive Service: Loving Our Neighbors Well (Baker). She has also published various essays in other edited volumes and journals.

Christopher M. The

is Director of Student Research and Initiative Management at The Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada. He was raised in an Indonesian immigrant church and served several Asian American congregations as a youth minister and associate pastor. Chris serves on the editorial board for the Indonesian Journal of Theology and is co-editor (with Hans A. Harmakaputra) of the volume, Kristianitas-Kristianitas di Asia Tenggara [Christianities in Southeast Asia] (Jakarta: BPK Gunung Mulia / Asosiasi Teologi Indonesia, 2022). He holds degrees from Azusa Pacific University and Fuller Theological Seminary.

Daniel Topf

is originally from Germany and spent ten years in Asia before moving to the United States to earn his Ph.D. in intercultural studies from Fuller Theological Seminary. He serves as a missions coach for World Team and teaches as an adjunct professor at a variety of Christian schools.

Wolfgang Vondey

is Professor of Christian Theology and Pentecostal Studies at the University of Birmingham, United Kingdom, where he is also the current head of the theology and religion department and director of the Centre for Pentecostal and Charismatic Studies. He is co-editor of the book series Systematic Pentecostal and Charismatic Theology as well as Christianity and Renewal—Interdisciplinary Studies. His most recent books include Pentecostal Theology: Living the Full Gospel (2017), the Routledge Handbook of Pentecostal Theology (2020), and The Scandal of Pentecost: A Theology of the Public Church (2024).

Aizaiah G. Yong

is an ordained minister in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). With strong ties to the Fellowship of Affirming Ministries (TFAM), he has over fifteen years of experience in religious and higher education leadership, healing and advocacy work informed by psychospiritual practice, and international public speaking. His books have been recipients of international and national awards. Multiracial Cosmotheandrist: A Practical Theology of Multiracial Experiences (Orbis Books, 2023) received the 2020 Lilly/Hispanic Theological Initiative Dissertation Fellowship and the 2022 Raimon Panikkar Prize for the English language. Trauma and Renewal: Toward Spiritual, Communal, and Holistic Transformation (Orbis Books, 2025) received the nationally acclaimed Louisville Institute Book Grant for Scholars of Color.
