

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the last 35 years the study of international maritime boundaries has flourished and attracted many contributors from several fields. As political geographers we thank the following people and organizations for the advice and assistance they have provided over the years we have been working individually and collectively in this field.

David Anderson, Nuno Antunes, Sam Bateman, Peter Beazley, Eric Bird, Gerald Blake, Derek Bowett, Grant Boyes, Chris Carleton, Jonathan Charney, Robin Cleverly, David Colson, Peter Cozens, Tim Daniel, Dan Dzurek, Alex Oude Elferink, Erik Franckx, David Freestone, Viv Forbes, Giampiero Francalanci, Dick Gent, Carl Grundy-Warr, Chris Hackford, David Hancox, Marcus Haward, Keith Highet, Bill Hirst, Peter Hocknell, Peggy Hoyle, Mladen Kelemnčić, Barbara Kwiatkowska, Ted McDorman, Raymond Milefsky, Erik Jaap Molenaar, Brian Murphy, Kaldone Nweihed, Choon-ho Park, Martin Pratt, Michael Reed, Chris Rizos, David Robertson, Ann Rogers, Dennis Rushworth, Tullio Scovazzi, Bob Smith, Ian Storey, Bill Stormont, Phil Symonds, Ian Townsend-Gault, Gillian Triggs and Martin Tsamenyi.

We also thank the International Boundaries Research Unit at the University of Durham for permission to reproduce previously published maps, Lorin Pruett of General Dynamics for his invaluable assistance in preparing figure 2.3, Delia Page for her assistance in proof reading and Chandra Jayasuriya for drawing most of the maps. Clive is also deeply indebted to his parents, Margaret and Howard, for their unwavering support and encouragement.

Finally we acknowledge the considerable cooperation and assistance of colleagues past and present at the Universities of Durham, Melbourne and New South Wales.

Victor Prescott and Clive Schofield