

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to express great appreciation to Said Mahmoudi, Professor of International Law at the Faculty of Law, Stockholm University, for excellent counselling in the preparation of this book. In addition I would like to express appreciation to the following colleagues at the Fridtjof Nansen Institute for support, encouragement, comments and assistance during writing: Director/Professor Willy Østreng, Jan Magne Markussen, Kari Lorentzen, Maryanne Rygg, Øystein Thommessen, Claes Lykke Ragner, Steven Sawhill, Dr. Davor Vidas, Dr. Geir Hønneland, Anne Kristin Jørgensen, Ivar Liseter and Erling Hagen. I would also like to thank Professor Göran Lysén, Uppsala University, for his fine counselling and optimism, the late Professor Torkel Opsahl, University of Oslo, for his refined assistance in approaching international law and the Russian culture, Associate Professor Peter Ørebech, University of Tromsø, Trond Ramsland, Strategic Norwegian Naval Staff Officer, Dr. Alex Oude Elferink and Dr. Erik Jaap Molenaar, Netherlands Institute for Law of the Sea, for very interesting legal discussions concerning the Arctic, and Anne C. Kjelling, the Nobel Institute Library for excellent research assistance.

I would like to very much thank the following Russian research fellows for providing assistance, interesting discussions and historical perspectives: Dr. Elena Nikitina, Dr. Valery Krykov, Svetlana Khorkina, Dr. Alexandra Livanova, and Dr. Leonid Tymchenko (Ukrainian).

Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to my wife, Ellen Flognfeldt, and daughters, Andrea Flognfeldt Brubaker and Ingrid Flognfeldt Brubaker for their support, encouragement, assistance and vivacity.

The responsibility for the views expressed in this work as well as for any mistakes is mine alone.

The book is an updated and revised version of reports produced as the result of project work performed under the auspices of the International Northern Sea Route Programme (INSROP). INSROP was a comprehensive, international, multidisciplinary research programme (1993–98) designed to investigate the possibilities for international commercial navigation through the Northeast Passage. The programme was based on a mutual agreement for research co-operation between three principal partners: Ship & Ocean Foundation (SOF), Japan; Central Marine Research & Design Institute (CNIIMF), Russia; and the Fridtjof Nansen Institute (FNI), Norway. The INSROP Secretariat was located at the Fridtjof Nansen Institute. The author would like to thank the sponsors of INSROP: The Nippon Foundation/Ship & Ocean Foundation, the Russian Federation, the Research Council of Norway, the Royal Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Royal Norwegian Ministry of the Environment, the Royal Norwegian Ministry of Industry and Trade, the Norwegian Industrial and Regional Development Fund, Norsk Hydro, Norwegian Shipowners' Association, Kværner, Phillips Petroleum Company Norway and the Fridtjof Nansen Institute for their support.
