

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This volume is the final outcome of the International Conference “Xu Guangqi (1562-1633), Late Ming Scholar and Statesman”, held in Paris, 20-23 March 1995.

First and foremost, I am indebted to the Fondation Hugot du Collège de France, which hosted and funded the Conference. I would like to extend special thanks to its former Director, M. Jean-Pierre de Morant, for his enthusiastic and generous help. The French Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique and Ministère des Affaires Étrangères, as well as the European Science Foundation, provided funding for the meeting, while the Ministère de la Recherche et de la Technologie subsidized the publication of the present volume. The Office of the Vice-President Research at the University of Victoria generously provided a subsidiary grant for final text preparation.

Prof. Jacques Gernet and Prof. Pierre-Étienne Will wholeheartedly supported the project from the outset, helping to make it a reality. I should like to thank them both, and Prof. Monika Übelhör and Dr Paola Calanca, for their valuable comments during the discussions.

To all contributors, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for their enthusiasm and patience. Copy-editing and typesetting were done by Ludgard De Decker, with whom it has been a pleasure working. Last but not least, my gratitude goes to Peter Engelfriet, who shared the editorial work for several years, and to Gregory Blue, without whom this project would have neither begun nor ended.

Paris, January 2001
Catherine Jami