respect and vision to achieve sustainable health for all.

This publication is based upon work from COST Action ‘Network for Evaluation of One Health’ (TD1404), supported by COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology).

COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology) is a funding agency for research and innovation networks. Our Actions help connect research initiatives across Europe and enable scientists to grow their ideas by sharing them with their peers. This boosts their research, career and innovation.

This book was produced by the COST funded Action TD1404, Network for Evaluation of One Health (NEOH). The Network brings together researchers, practitioners, decision-makers and other stakeholders with an interest in One Health and evaluation to develop and use methods and frameworks for improved decision making.

We are greatly indebted to the COST programme, for its financial support and its key role in facilitating networking and exchange, thereby enabling innovation and generation of new knowledge. Without the support of COST, we would not have been able to engage as many people from different countries and create this dynamic learning network. Special thanks go to the COST Scientific Officer Mafalda Quintas and the Administrative Officers Ange Marie Ina Uwase, Aranzazu Sanchez and Marie-Astrid Mukankusi who accompanied our Network. Their professional, patient, competent and friendly support helped to make our Action a success.

We also express our heartfelt gratitude to all participants in NEOH for their enthusiasm, expertise, motivation, manifold contributions, willingness to share and discuss ideas, exchange of materials, collaboration, reflection, and engagement. Many working hours in-kind and spare time have gone into developing, testing, refining and designing of this book and we thank them for joining forces and continuing to be inspired and inspiring!

Finally, we thank the grant holder institution, the Royal Veterinary College in London, United Kingdom, for their unsparing support in the administrative and financial management of NEOH. We are particularly grateful to the RVC's Vice-Principal for Research and Innovation and all members of the Research Office; the Director, Assistant Directors and all members of the Finance Department; and the management of the Department for Pathobiology and Population Sciences for their willingness to take on this responsibility and the diligent and skilled execution of tasks.
