

CONTRIBUTORS

Theodoor Bakker

is a law graduate from Leyden University and has practised law in Indonesia and Singapore as a foreign legal counsel. He currently practises with Loeff Claey's Verbeke, Amsterdam. His practice remains weighted towards Indonesia.

Merijn Boender

studied Japanese language and culture and law at Leyden University. He conducted research at Sophia University, Tokyo. Presently, he is working at JIMPEX, a trade firm focussing on Japan.

Yufang Guo

is manager of the Deloitte & Touche China Desk, Rotterdam.

Akira Ishikawa

is emeritus professor of law at Keio University, Tokyo. He was awarded an honorary degree by the Universities of Cologne and Saarbrücken. He is a member of numerous committees including the Advisory Committee on Civil Procedure in the Japanese Ministry of Justice and the Board of the Japanese Association of Notaries. He is a patent lawyer in Yokohama.

Robert Jagtenberg

obtained a PhD degree at Erasmus University Rotterdam and lectures and publishes on comparative law and European law. He is co-director of the Law & Legal Practice in East Asia programme.

Jinbiao Ji

is a lecturer at the China Central University of Finance.

Neil Kaplan

formerly High Court Judge in Charge of Construction and Arbitration List, Hong Kong; Vice President, Chartered Institute of Arbitrators; Chairman, Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre; Special Counsel to Debevoise & Plimpton; Visiting Professor, City University of Hong Kong and Council Member of ICCA. Convenor of the Dispute Review Group for Hong Kong's new airport.

Hans Kleinsman

is a law graduate of Erasmus University Rotterdam and served a traineeship at Johnson Stokes & Master Consultants Indochina Ltd., Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam and continues his research into South-East Asian affairs. He is currently working at Moret, Ernst & Young, Rotterdam.

Derek Roebuck

is a solicitor of the Supreme Courts of England and Hong Kong and a professor of law at the City University of Hong Kong.

Annie de Roo

obtained a PhD degree at Erasmus University Rotterdam and lectures and publishes on comparative law and labour law. She is co-director of the Law & Legal Practice in East Asia programme.

Edwin Vermulst

is a partner with Vermulst & Waer, Brussels, Belgium. He specialises in representing Asian producers caught up in EC anti-dumping proceedings.

Willem Visser 't Hooft studied Japanese language and culture and law at Leyden University and Tokyo University. Presently, he works with Trenité Van Doorne and is preparing a thesis on Japanese contract law.

Guiguo Wang

Dean of Faculty of Law and Woo Po Shing Professor of Chinese and Comparative Law, City University of Hong Kong; LLM (Columbia), JSD (Yale) Visiting Professor of Law, the People's University of China; Arbitrator, China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission, China.

Dae-Kyu Yoon

is professor of law at Kyungnam University and director for planning at the Institute for Far Eastern Studies, Seoul.

Wong Kwok Yuen

is a professor of law at the City University of Hong Kong.