

Yearbook of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law Online

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Yearbook of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law is now accepting submissions for its forthcoming Volume 24 (2024).

YIMEL is affiliated with the Centre for Islamic and Middle Eastern Law at SOAS, University of London, and benefits from an international Board of Editors. Published by Brill and indexed by SCOPUS, the Yearbook of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law employs a double-blind peer-review. It is available online and in print, and Advance Articles are published online throughout the year at: <https://brill.com/view/journals/yimo/aop/issue.xml>

To be included in hardcopy of Volume 24 (2024) of YIMEL, manuscripts need to be submitted via Brill's Editorial Manager by 1st February 2025. Manuscripts submitted after this deadline will still be published on-line in advance but included in the hardcopy of volume 25 (2025) of YIMEL.

YIMEL is the leading publication on Islamic and Middle Eastern Law. It provides practice-relevant analysis of the latest trends on the laws of the MENA region and the Muslim world in the form of country surveys, peer-reviewed articles, case notes, and book reviews. It is the only global journal that comprehensively and regularly surveys the legal developments in the jurisdictions of the Muslim world, stretching from the Middle East to South and South-East Asia. The journal is an essential source and point of reference for academics, practitioners and students who work on Islamic and Middle Eastern law.

To submit a manuscript, please visit:

<https://www.editorialmanager.com/yimo/default1.aspx>

For general enquiries, please contact the Editorial Team c/o Professor Martin Lau (m11@soas.ac.uk) & Dr Zubair Abbasi (mzubairabbasi@gmail.com).