

Scope

The e-Journal of Portuguese History (e-JPH) is a peer-reviewed international journal published twice a year (June and December), exclusively in electronic format. The journal was founded in 2002 through a collaborative effort between the University of Porto (Luis Adão da Fonseca) and Brown University (Onésimo Almeida). This collaboration grew to include the universities of Évora, Lisbon, and São Paulo (Cátedra Jaime Cortesão). The main objective of the e-JPH is to facilitate the publication of original, high-quality and innovative scholarly work on historical subjects, encompassing any period, within any sub-field of historical research.

The journal pays special attention to themes and topics on the history of Portuguese-speaking societies, analyzed in various contexts and geographies. This includes a comparative perspective and the utilization of international, transnational, and global approaches and methodologies. Additionally, it engages in dialogue with the most significant and cutting-edge research conducted elsewhere. Contributions from the different social sciences with a historical orientation are also welcome. The e-JPH actively promotes transdisciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches.

The ethos of e-JPH is pluralistic; it does not adhere to prescriptive ideological, theoretical or methodological approaches and privileges an inter-generational dialogue between scholars of different academic backgrounds.

Ethical and Legal Conditions

The publication of a manuscript in a peer-reviewed work is expected to follow standards of ethical behaviour for all parties involved in the act of publishing: authors, editors, and reviewers. Authors, editors, and reviewers should thoroughly acquaint themselves with Brill's publication ethics, which may be downloaded here: Publication Ethics & COPE Compliance \(brill.com\)

The EJPH denounces and sanctions cases of plagiarism. Academic plagiarism is the complete or partial repetition of someone else's text or ideas while claiming authorship. EJPH also considers a duplicate publication of the author's own work as (self-)plagiarism. Plagiarism violates the obligation to scholarly honesty and constitutes scholarly misconduct.

By submitting a manuscript to EJPH, the author consent to a check of his or her manuscript with a plagiarism detection software. Should any suspicion of plagiarism arise, the editorial board will take further steps in accordance with good publication practice. EJPH especially reserves the right to report detected cases of plagiarism to the author's academic institution.

EJPH does not allow its authors to submit the same manuscript to more than one publisher, or even to more than one publication at the same publisher, without full disclosure.

Instructions for Authors

Online Submission

EJPH uses online submission only. Authors should submit their manuscript online via the Editorial Manager (EM) online submission system at: <https://www.editorialmanager.com/ejphbrill/default.aspx>.

Double-anonymous Peer Review

EJPH uses a double-anonymous peer review system, which means that manuscript author(s) do not know who the reviewers are, and that reviewers do not know the names of the author(s). All manuscripts received are evaluated by the editors and after pre-screening, submitted to two anonymous external referees.

In a separate title page file, authors must provide:

- the complete title of the manuscript;
- the names and full (professional) affiliation of all author(s), with e-mail address(es), weblink to their institution, full postal address, ORCID (if available);
- the abstract and keyword texts in English and Portuguese;
- a statement that the manuscript submitted is an unpublished original manuscript by the author themselves, that the manuscript has not been submitted elsewhere, that the manuscript does not infringe upon any copyright, and that every use of someone else's text(s) or idea(s) has been properly referenced.

This page will not be accessible to the referees.

All other files (manuscript, figures, tables, etc.) should not contain any information concerning author names, institutions, etc. The names of these files and the document proper-ties should also be anonymised.

Review Process

The Managing Editor pre-screens all manuscripts, and then suggests that they either be rejected or sent out for review. S/he then sends the manuscript to all editors and – if s/he proposes peer review – also suggests reviewer names.

The Editors take the decision to either send the paper out for peer review or to reject it. Papers which do not fall within the scope of the EJPH or are manifestly substandard are not sent out for peer review.

As a rule, two reviewers will review a manuscript independently of each other. Members of the advisory board will be regularly asked to review manuscripts.

Reviewers make use of a detailed review-form.

In case of two positive reviews and possibly after revisions, one editor is assigned to reread the manuscript and give their advice, before the board's decision is made on the basis of the peer reviews and his/her reading. The Editors, however, are not bound by the reviewers' recommendation. The decision to publish is taken by consensus. If no consensus emerges, the Editor-in-Chief has the final say. Notification of acceptance, rejection or need for revision will be given by e-mail. Please note that a rejection of a manuscript does not necessarily reflect upon the quality of the paper. The Journal receives far more submissions than it can publish, and hence many factors go into the selection process. Among these are the desire to ensure a broad range of topics, to feature diverse voices and methodological approaches, and sometimes, conversely, to shine a spotlight on a particular strand of international legal history via the publication of a focus section.

Instructions for Authors

File Format

Please upload source files such as .doc, and not .pdf files.

Contact Address

For any questions or problems relating to your manuscript please contact: ejph.brill@gmail.com.

For eventual questions about Editorial Manager, authors can also contact EM Support at: support-em@brill.com.

Submission Requirements

General

Authors are requested to consult and follow these instructions for authors. Each manuscript should be submitted double-spaced with ample margins. All pages should be numbered consecutively. All notes and references must be incorporated into footnotes. Please avoid advanced programme features such as automatic table of contents or auto-text.

Types of Contributions

The editors of the EJPH invite submissions of manuscripts on Portuguese history from a multidisciplinary perspective. They also invite new approaches such as global history and history from below, and submissions from all disciplines (history, philosophy, geography, sociology, economics, and others).

If an author wishes to have an essay previously published in a foreign language considered by the Journal for first publication in English, they so state at the time of submission and provide relevant copyright approval by the first publication to the Journal.

Language

Manuscripts may be written in British English.

Spelling

Spelling must follow the language used, except in quotations from other sources, where the spelling conventions of the original should be retained.

Authors whose first language is not English should ensure that a draft of their article has been read and corrected by a native English speaker.

Capitalisation

The use of capitals should be kept to a sensible minimum. We prefer 'mediaeval' and 'western Europe'. The word 'Act' should always be capitalised, even in non-specific references, to avoid ambiguity, but 'bill' can be lower case. Unless a specific court is referred to by name, 'court' is normally written in lower case; the same applies to 'judge' and other generic terms. Titles of statutes always have the first and chief words capitalised (e.g., 'the Representation of the People Act 1911').

In general, please try to avoid capitalisation, except for proper nouns: e.g., World War I/II.

The general rule should be: lower case (examples: para., paras., ch. (chapter), figure, part, art., arts. (article/s)). Please do not capitalise 'state'.

Instructions for Authors

Abbreviations

Please note that British style contractions are written as: Mr, St, edn, without a full stop. Abbreviated words that do not end with their final letter, and their plural forms do have a full stop: vol., vols., ed., eds.).

Italics

Please keep italics to a sensible minimum. We prefer not to italicise the following: bona fide, caveat, de facto, de iure, dicta, dictum, gratis, habeas corpus, intra vires, mala fides, mandamus, prima facie and ultra vires.

Length

For a scholarly research manuscript, the length should be 10000 words or less, including footnotes and bibliography. This is not a firm cap, but it is a strong preference. The length of a book review should not be more than 2000 words.

Illustrations

The inclusion of illustrations is welcome as long as it is fundamental to the article and not included for decorative purposes only. Illustrations should be submitted electronically and should be clearly marked. When necessary, crops, horizontal or vertical orientation, enlargement of details, etc. should be indicated. All figures and tables must be cited consecutively in the text. Figures should be submitted as separate source files in .eps, .tif, or .jpg format, in a size suitable for the typesetting area of the journal. The resolution of these files should be at least 300 dpi for half-tone figures, and 600 dpi for line drawings. Number the files, and indicate in the manuscript where they are to appear (Fig. 1 here). The text in a figure must be legible, and should not be smaller than corps 7. The size of this lettering for any text in a figure should be the same for all figures in the manuscript. Captions (including proper acknowledgements) should be placed at the appropriate position with the map or illustration or sent separately, clearly labeled in the file name.

Manuscript Structure

General

Only finalised and carefully proof-read work will be considered for publication. Each manuscript should be submitted double-spaced with ample margins. All pages should be numbered consecutively. All notes and references must be incorporated into footnotes. Please avoid advanced programme features such as automatic table of contents or auto-text.

Abstract & Keywords

The paper should begin with a short abstract of 150 words or less, and 3-8 keywords. Please provide the abstracts and keywords also in Portuguese.

Instructions for Authors

Headings

1 First Level Heading

The text.

1.1 Second Level Heading

The text.

Bibliography

References should be given both in the footnotes, and in a bibliography at the end of the article.

Footnotes

Footnotes should be numbered consecutively through the text of an article with a superscript numeral. The first time, references should be given as completely as possible. The same style should be used for both the footnotes as the Bibliography.

Thereafter a short form should be used. Please use Ibid. instead of id. Please avoid using f. or ff. and refer to the exact pagination, 4-12. Write out the page numbers in full: 41-43, but not 41-3. Use “et seq.” instead of “f./ff.”

It is not permitted to include a footnote on the title of the paper, or a footnote in the first or last sentence of your article to thank people, or make remarks about the origins of the paper. Instead, compose a separate Acknowledgements section with a maximum length of three lines at the end of the article, before the References.

Numbers and Dates

Numbers should be written out up to 100, except in a discussion that includes a mixture of numbers above and below this, in which case all of them should be in figures (e.g., 356 walkers overtook 72 others, as 6 fell back, exhausted). A sentence should never begin with a figure.

Numbers with units should always be given in figures, with a space between the number and the unit (e.g., 4 cm).

Dates should be written in the form: 20 December 1148; 20 December; AD 245-50.

Centuries should be written out (twenty-first century) and 1920s, etc. should be written without an apostrophe.

Quotations

Use single quotation marks ('), except for quotations within quotations, where you then use double quotation marks ("). Full stops, commas, etc. come after the quotation mark, and not before it: 'They said that'. Quotations longer than 3 lines long should be given as block quotes, set off from the regular text with one white line of space above and below, and indented. This block quote takes no quotation marks.

Publication

Proofs

Upon acceptance, an article proof will be sent to each author by e-mail to check carefully for factual and typographic errors. At this stage in the production process, only minor corrections are allowed.

Alterations to the original manuscript at this stage will result in considerable delay in publication and, therefore, are not accepted. Proofs should be returned within 7 days of receipt to the journal manager.

E-offprints

A PDF file of the article will be supplied free of charge by the publisher to authors for personal use. The Author retains the right to self-archive the submitted (pre-peer-review) version of the article at any time. The submitted version of an article is the author's version that has not been peer-reviewed, nor had any value added to it by Brill (such as formatting and typesetting). The Author retains the right to self-archive the accepted (peer-reviewed) version without any embargo period. The accepted version means the version which has been accepted for publication and contains all revisions made after peer reviewing and copy editing, but has not yet been typeset in the publisher's lay-out. The publisher's lay-out must not be used in any repository or on any website (<https://brill.com/page/selfarchiving/sharing-your-work-selfarchiving>).

License to Publish

Transfer of Copyright

By submitting a manuscript, the author agrees that the copyright for the article is transferred to the publisher if and when the article is accepted for publication. For that purpose the author needs to sign the License to Publish which will be sent with the first proofs of the manuscript.

Open Access

Should the author wish to publish the article in Open Access they can choose non-exclusive Open Access publication under a Creative Commons license in exchange for an Article Publication Charge (APC), upon signing a special Open Access License to Publish form.
